Budding poet

Dear Halton Hills This week newspaper:
Here is a poem I wrote for your Kids page:

Sometimes I look up, up in the sky and see all sorts of shapes go by.
Isn't it fun to sit under this great big tree
and see my imaginary shapes go by.
Sometimes I look at the bark of a tree
So many shades of brown to see.
Light brown, dark brown, a little bit of black
That's all for this verse but I'll be back.
Sometimes I look at the soil on the ground,
So many flowers to be found.
Pink ones, purple ones, red ones too,
Let's go pick them, me and you.
Sometimes I look all over the place,
Gardens, trees, clouds to chase.
What a wonderful world we can keep
Day, noon and when its time to sleep
When the moon is out and stars shine bright
I can't wait to see more of these Beautiful sights!

P.S. I love your kids part in the newspaper.
