Customer service is the key

Beginning a new business is hard at the best of times. But John and Barry McNabb of McNabb Graphics, located at 56 Mill St. East, Unit #5, Acton, are confident their experience and expertise will allow the business to be successful. Owner John McNabb has 27 years of experience in commercial printing and newspaper production, while brother Barry contributes his creative talents: a Graphics Arts diploma from St. Lawrence College and a Computer Graphics diploma from Sheridan College. "Customer service is the backbone of any business today", said John McNabb. Complete computer desktop publishing facilities will allow the operation to turn projects over in relatively short periods of time. This new technology, combined with in-shop camera, press and bindery equipment, allows McNabb Graphics to supply its customers with a complete printing service. Products such as business cards, letterheads, envelopes, business forms (carbonless and continuous computer forms), brochures, flyers (mail and newspaper insert), programs, price lists, raffle tickets and admission tickets are some of the more common items McNabb Graphics will promote. Their association with outside suppliers will also enable them to offer wedding invitations, stationery supplies, specialty advertising items (pens, hats, T-shirts, glasses, mugs, etc.) and rubber stamps. "We will also offer a supply service to business and at-home computer users", said McNabb. The business objective is to keep the overhead to a minimum without jeopardizing customer service in what today is a demanding and competitive market.
