By Margaret Vint

Welcome to the first of the columns which will appear on the monthly Downtown Page. We hope this will help to keep you informed of the events and happenings in Downtown Georgetown and, learn more about our area and the people who work within it.

In March we launched our "Seniors' Day in the B.I.A.". Seniors can look forward to special discounts and some in-store special prices on the last Wednesday every month. Non-retail businesses are also participating and we've heard of plans for information sessions on topics of particular interest to seniors.

Our thanks to Bob Creasy, Knechtel's Georgetown Food Market, for giving us the opportunity to cosponsor his seniors' Bus. On Seniors' Day the bus will stop in downtown on its return from Moore Park. Passengers leaving the bus will be picked up approximately one hour later and returned to their residences. (Durham St., Sargent Rd. and Cote Terrace).

On Saturday April 10th the clouds disappeared just in time for the arrival of the Easter bunny who had us all "hopping" as she led our second annual Easter Parade along Main Street. Prizes were awarded for 'the funniest', 'the frilliest' and 'the most colorful' bonnets. The winners, Emma Carter (5), Jesse Montgomery (5) and Emily Fisher (7), each received a package of Easter goodies presented by Judges Anne Currie and Pam Johnston. The packages were actually specially wrapped 'crates' - the idea of one of our many creative people, Carol-Anne Fisher (Teddy Bear Specialties).

The bunny costume was donated by Up Up And Away Balloons and, again this year, 'bunny' was played by volunteer Ann Curry - yes, she does get a few chuckles when giving her name!

The Easter egg hunt was made possible by our merchants who provided Easter treats for those who spotted the 'special egg'.

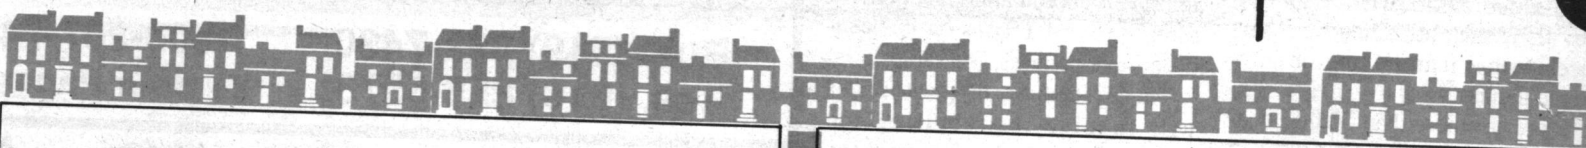

Thank you to everyone who participated in Downtown's Easter.

Sunday May 9th is the day when one particular lady in your life will be honored. She will be shown she is appreciated in a variety of ways. Her gift may be a crayon drawing, a card made especially for her, flowers or candy, a telephone call, breakfast in bed or, the ultimate luxury - one whole hour of peace and quiet!

Whatever her gift, it will be cherished because it is a gift of love.

Whatever her name, Mother's Day is her special day.

It began, this whole phenomena of plate collecting, with the simple release of a collector plate entitled "The Frozen Window" from the kilns of Bing and Grohndal in 1895. "The Frozen Window" sold for 50 cents and is now worth $5,900.

Although plate collecting is a work of fine art, it differs from other art objects in one critical respect: as a limited-edition fine-art plate, it can be bought, sold, and traded on a clearly defined market years after the edition closes at issue price.

In fact, collector's plates are regarded by many experts to be the world's most actively traded art form. After the edition closes, collectors who want a plate must pay what others ask for it on the secondary (open market), where price is determined solely by supply and demand. If demand outstrips supply, the asking price for any plate could go up dramatically.

Collector plates are a key element to the business but they also carry porcelain dolls, music boxes and collectible figurines. When you shop at a local collectible dealer, you save money by not paying postage and handling.

Montgomery's of Georgetown, located at 73 Main Street South, Downtown Georgetown, is owned and operated by Bonnie Montgomery and her daughter Loree Carter. Originally started on Main Street, Montgomery's has expanded to other collectible lines.
