Controversial drug use

more violent, and intensifies thoughts of suicide. The drug is also supposed to accelerate the growth of cancer cells, especially in the mammary glands.

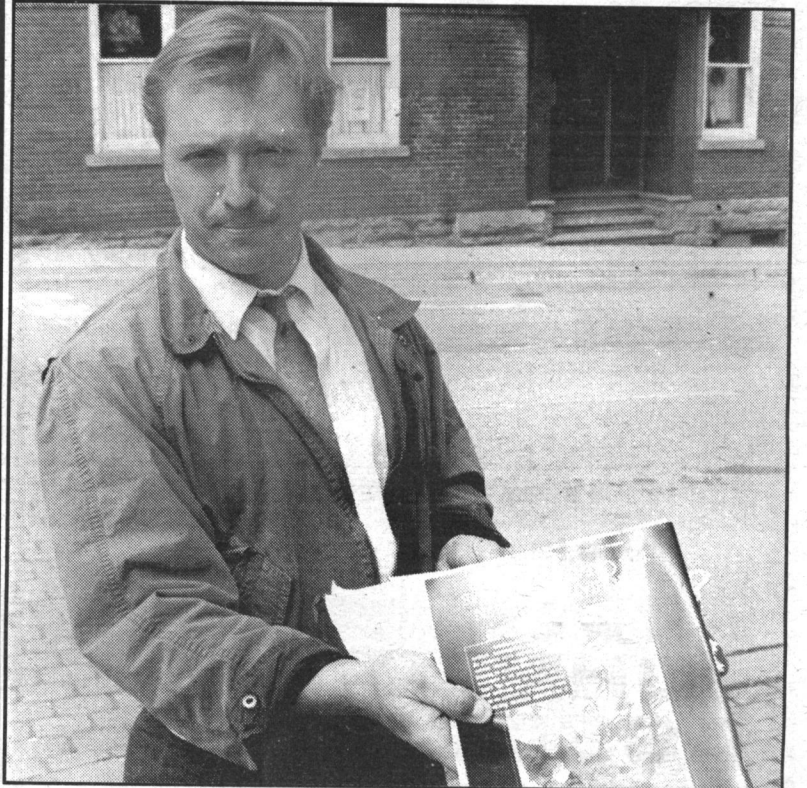

Dina Dichek, director of pharmacy at the Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital, admits that Prozac is used at the hospital. She explained that it was introduced only after extensive tests had been conducted. "After the results of tests were published, we were convinced that the drug was safe," Dichek explained.

Dichek claimed the drug is classified as an anti-depressant. She added that Prozac is used for victims of depression, some of whom have been diagnosed as already having suicidal tendencies. She explained this may be a reason why the misconceptions about suicidal tendencies have developed.

Dichek said another reason why people may be wary of the drug is that its effects stay in the body five times longer than other psychiatric drugs.

"We use the drug very carefully," Dichek explained. "Usually only after more traditional anti-depressants are not successful, or if patients develop a reaction to the medication they are taking."

Raymond Mallet, of the Citizen's Commission on Human Rights, was at the corner of Main and Mill Streets Wednesday afternoon, giving out information about the controversial drug Prozac, and asking people to sign a petition banning the drug. photo by Oksana Buhe/HHTW

How would you like to live on a lovely Lake?

THE RESIDENCE ... AND THE LAKE ... IN ACTON

Here is a Custom Cape Cod style ten-room home in absolutely tip-top condition. Four large bedrooms. The Master gives you your own adjoining, large sitting room. A quiet and private room where you can rest and relax in peace. You have a fine living room, with fireplace, and a separate dining room. There is a most impressive open-concept kitchen, eating area and family room, running the width of the house, with another floor-to-ceiling fireplace. Large windows, plus a glass sliding door walkout to one of the two spacious viewing decks, creates constant lakeside family enjoyment. You also enjoy the warmth and relaxation of a fully equipped private hot tub room, and a big finished recreation room, with yet another full height fireplace. The home warms with natural gas. Very economical in a 2900 sq.ft. house. Upper and lower viewing/entertaining decks, central air-conditioning, central vacuum system, steeple and cove ceilings, gleaming hardwood floors, broadloom and other interesting features gives you a total family Lakeshore home you cannot ignore. Lots of fishing, canoeing, sailing, swimming, skating, season-round fascinating family fun-living. All can be yours. You'll want to move in the next day...Now isn't that a very nice thought!
