

Great time for Steelhead

By Mike Leuenberger

After the great opening of the trout season on the Credit River this year, many happy fisherman will be hanging up their trout gear, and dusting off their Northern pike and Walleye (pickrel) equipment.

For those of us who would like a second chance at a big Steelhead you may be in luck.

The week before the May long weekend is a great time to hit the water.

The days are long, temperatures are mild and spawned-out fish are recovering. Big Rainbows have spent weeks making their way up stream past countless spawn bags and single eggs to the gravel where they spawn. Shortly after spawning they begin feeding and regain their strength and color.

The time for spawn sacks and eggs has come and gone. Now you should be outfitted like someone after resident trout.

Spinning rods and reels spooled with four or six pound mono are ideal since they can be used to present a number of baits.

My favorite lures to fish are the Blue Fox, Mepps, and Vibrax spinners on Ultra-lite tackle. Fly fishing starts to pick up and can be an exciting way to catch late season bows.

If it's early bird Walleye (pickrel) you want, the Bay of Quinte has it all. Walleye season opened the first Saturday in May and the fishing is hot as many local anglers have found out this year, myself included.

We stayed at Long Reach camp. If you want information call Sam Giambra at 1-613-396-2329. For tips on tackle or just fishing in general contact Mike at Leuener Custom Rod Building and Repair at 873-8144.
