altar table. Police are looking for suspects and witnesses.

Car break-in

Early Thursday morning, someone broke in to a red

Nissan 240SX which was parked in the driveway of the owner's Georgetown residence, and stole a 35 mm camera and sunglasses, valued at $400.

Break and enter

Tuesday morning, police were called to a home Eight Line, south of 15 Side Road in Georgetown, after suspects kicked in the side door, entered the house and ransacked it. An RCA 26" television was taken, along with a VCR, two rhinestone chokers, a quantity of liquor and a six inch buck knife. There were no witnesses but police are still investigating.

Loot left behind

A thief broke in to a home on Winston Churchill Blvd. in Norval Tuesday morning by forcing open the rear door. The thief then took a pillowcase from one of the bedrooms and began filling it with a Timex watch and an electric razor, but was startled when the owner came home. The thief dropped the pillowcase and fled. The safe had been left untouched.

Developers in dispute

By Oksana Buhel

Thursday's Ontario Municipal Board meeting at the Halton Hills Civic Centre turned in to a session of "Well, I have this - do you?" Stephen LeDrew, solicitor for Rinarin Ltd., demanded why Acto II should have preference over the Acton East developers.

Glen Barker, a planner testifying in favor of the Acto II development, revealed his own proposed plan for developing the town.

Barker's arguments were the Acto II development is based on the principle of infilling, the land already has the necessary "infrastructures" (schools, parks, etc.) and the logical extension of Acton is to the north.

LeDrew challenged Barker on every point. He pointed out the Rinarin property shares the same attributes with the Acto II property. With respect to a storm water management facility, LeDrew admitted the proposed location for a facility on Acton East land would be outside the urban boundary, while Barker boasted a facility could be accommodated on Acto II land. When LeDrew asked whether the Acto II site had been approved, Barker confessed it had not.

went to police college in Aylmer, Ontario, with Nystedt - Constable Dave Jones (No. 11 Georgetown Division), Constable Jody Thompson of Oakville, and Constable Michelle Karcz of the D.A.R.E. program. Karcz's husband, Constable John Karcz of Burlington and Detective Sergeant Mike Kingston, also attended the funeral. Representatives from police forces across Canada and the United States were in attendance.

"There were about 1,000 officers there," estimated Kingston, who represented the Region. "It was a very emotional experience."

Fabric Care TIPS

~ Fifty-First of a Series ~
When Wedding Bells Ring

Bridal gowns are a big investment. Selected and cared for properly, your gown can be used by several generations.

Wedding gowns are often decorated with beads, lace, and other trim. This may cause problems during cleaning.

Many trims are glued rather than sewn to the surface of the fabric. Sometimes the trim will start to curl and pull away at the edges during wear.

Many adhesives are extremely soluble in drycleaning solvent and drycleaning will cause a complete loss and removal of trim.

After The Wedding
The gown should be cleaned within a few days or weeks after the wedding. Unattended spilled champagne or punch can leave invisible stains that darken in time. The longer the stains or soils are left in the gown, the greater the probability of their becoming permanently set.

Barragers Cleaners offers careful cleaning of wedding gowns, but it takes cooperation. You should point out any spills or stains and these should be carefully noted by the counter attendant.
