

Understanding agriculture

The Halton -Peel Agricultural Education Committee (HPAEC) has begun a crusade to enlighten the public about the merits of agriculture. The responsibility falls on two new members of the committee - Sandi Brander of Norval and Scott McWhinnie of Mississauga.

Brander began July 1 as Agriculture Awareness Coordinator, and McWhinnie will be joining her August 1. They will be organizing displays at fairs and farmers' markets and visiting classrooms, businesses and organizations interested in understanding agriculture. Brander and McWhinnie will be helping out with the HPAEC-run Albion Hills Summer Environment Institute - a one week training program for teachers to provide suggestions about adding, or emphasizing, agricultural components in the school curriculum.

"Both Halton and Peel are becoming very urbanized," explained Brander. "Many kids don't even know where their food comes from." The HPAEC, made up of teachers, farmers and members of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, has been educating people for almost a year. Brander was asked to join the committee because of her interest and understanding of agriculture. Brander attends the University of Guelph studying geography, with background courses in rural extension. She has been member of 4H for nine years, and has lived on a farm 21 years.
