

Credit Valley Artisans courses starting

Another great line-up of courses has been assembled by the Credit Valley Artisans with the first scheduled to begin Sept. 19. Registration in person will be at the Cedarvale Cottage in Cedarvale Park on Sept. 10 a.m. and 12 noon. It should be noted that while courses are filled in the order that fees are paid, the "in-person" registration will take priority over those mailed in.

These courses are all held at the Cedarvale Cottage at Main St. and Maple Avenue in Georgetown. The classes are small so students get close attention from the instructor. The courses are filled on a registration paid basis, first come-first served. Some of the courses fill quickly so prompt registration is advised...particularly for the children's courses. There is a minimum number of registrants required for a course to run with the deadline one week prior to the first class.

Registration forms are available at the library in Georgetown and also at the Halton Hills Recreation and Parks Department in the Civic Centre. You can also get more specific information on the courses by calling the Registrar - Karen King at (416) 873-2018 or dropping by the Credit Valley Artisan information booth at the Georgetown Fall Fair.

Town of Halton Hills director of planning, Ian Keith, agreed with Serjeantson. He attributed this change to the power of the DFO to fine and imprison anyone who harms the quality of water and fish habitat. "It's an intensely powerful piece of legislation," he admitted.

Regional councillors may have figured out a way to get around this legislation. Regional chairman Peter Pomeroy will be in contact with the Governor in Council, who has the authority to exempt Halton Region and its representatives from prosecution, under section 36(4) of the Fisheries Act. Serjeantson pointed out other possible dangers of the legislation. "Even if the DFO does not prosecute, anyone else can use this piece of legislature to prosecute."
