Artisans pottery course soon underway

This is for those who enjoy working with their hands. The Credit Valley Artisans is offering a beginner's course in Pottery and Sculpting with Clay. This is a nine-week course held on Thursday evenings at the Cedarvale Cottage in Cedarvale Park, Main Street and Maple Avenue, Georgetown.

The instructor for the course is Mrs. Glynis Milligan.

Fascinated with clay since a youngster in England, in 1985 Mrs. Milligan added wheel pottery to her skills of clay sculpture and handbuilding.

Mrs. Milligan is the current president of the Potters and Sculptors Guild of the Credit Valley Artisans and is a member of the Oakville Arts Society.

Basic handbuilding techniques of coil, slab and pinch will be taught. Once a "feel for the clay" has been acquired, the student will be introduced to centering, basic glazing and decorating techniques of wheel pottery. All greenware will be fired in the kilns of the Credit Valley Artisans.

There is also an introductory pottery course for children (aged 8 to 10 years) over a period of four Saturday mornings, beginning Saturday, Oct. 9. The children will learn handbuilding and sculpting with clay as well as how to finish with their own glaze.

Mary-Ann Martin instructs this course allowing the children to express their own creativity.

Registration for either of these courses is by mail, but must reach the Credit Valley Artisans no later than one week prior to the first class.

Registration forms are available at the library in Georgetown and also at the Halton Hills Recreation and Parks Department. You can also get more specific information on these courses by calling the registrar, Karen King at (416) 873-2018.

A magical land that casts its spell on every living thing - from the stately gum trees that weave their own silky blue veil to the astounding Great Barrier Reef and some distinctive furry friends.

There are sophisticated cosmopolitan cities and a culture as old as history. Australians are very friendly outgoing people and like to spend weekends and free time enjoying some of the most beautiful beaches in the world. Also there are many rivers and lakes, rain forests and reefs, deserts and mountains that offer varied activities and sight-seeing.

You can discover the diversity of Australian art at the Perth Cultural Centre; or savor the cosmopolitan charms and natural beauty of Sydney. Australian cities have it all - world-class museums, seaside promenades and sidewalk cafes - just perfect for watching the world go by.

Twelve vie for police chief position

By Oksana Buhel

The Selection Committee of the Halton Regional Police Services Board will hold an in-camera meeting tomorrow (Thursday), involving the entire board to reveal the 12 final applicants for the post of Halton Region Police Chief to replace the retiring Chief James Harding.

Barry Quinn, chair of the board and member of the Selection Committee, said the names of the applicants will not be released to save any embarrassment if they do not get the position, or if their present employers do not know about their applications. Twenty-one applications were initially received.

The entire board will decide which applicants will be more extensively interviewed.

Then, the committee, which includes Quinn, Police Chief James Harding, services board member Wendy Roberts, and Reg Ellis, a private consultant, will select a final candidate who will still have to be approved by the board. Quinn predicts the process will be completed by mid-October.

"We're looking for a special person who will be able to deal with today's policing," Quinn said.

Regional and municipal representatives, a United Nations delegation from Malawi, members of the Halton Agriculture Advisory Committee (HAAC) and interested members of the public were present Thursday to find out how Ralda Waters (far right) and daughters Linda and Kathy run their dairy farm, how farming has changed and what types of problems face today's farmers. Waters' farm was one of four visited during the Halton Farm Tour, organized by HAAC. photo by Oksana Buhel/HHTW
