A special event at the Art Gallery

By John Sommer
Special to HHTW

A wonderfully lively and challenging exhibition of art-and-crafts works has moved into the Gallery of the Halton Hills Cultural Centre, 9 Church St., Georgetown for the month of October.

Here and Now '93, this year's window on the arts in Halton and neighboring regions, sponsored by "Re:Vision", a Georgetown artist association, had a rousing start at its opening on Wednesday. There was music and wine and an excited crowd viewing 52 exhibits by 37 artists.

At 8 p.m., John Bartolac, the president of "Re:Vision", opened the exhibition by thanking the participating artists, the businesses and citizens who donated the awards, the members of "Re:Vision" who worked hard to bring the exhibition about, and the distinguished painters MacKay Houstoun (Toronto and Georgetown) and Barry Phillips (Brampton), who selected the exhibition from 92 submitted entries. These two members of the jury each have four of their paintings displayed in the showcases of the Cultural Centre lobby.

Following the president, Mr. Houstoun announced the award winners. They are: Tim Alberts, with an award donated by Oxbow Books, Georgetown; Marek Ciekiewicz, with an award donated by Gallery House Sol; Helen Daley, with an award donated by Georgetown Photo; Una O'Callaghan, with an award donated by White Rose, Brampton; Gennaro Panacci, with an award donated by Art Effects, Georgetown; Barbara Stephens, with an award donated by Office Magic, Georgetown; and

Virginia Wilson, with an award donated by Bruce and Margaret Harding,

Mr. Phillips announced the names of six Honorable Mentions. They are: Sarah Delroy, Joan Lowndes, Carol-Ann Michaelson, Joseph Panacci, Dawn Schertzl and Wilma Stammler.

However, it should be pointed out, the jury was very tough. Only the best works got into the exhibition, and everybody who is a participant has reason to be proud of this fact.

Here are the names of the so far, not-mentioned participating artists: William Albiez, Shirley Brambley, Gary Brunt, Lyn Barrett-Cowan, Andries De Boer, Janice Gittings, Margaret Grant, Peter Jones, Cathy Laidlaw, Louise Laroche, Susie Lee, Marlene Madole, Joan March, Valerie Mokrytzki, Carol Mooney, Sybil Rampen, Doreen Renner, Robin Symmes, Jo Walteson, Keith Wellstead, Gisela Wittenberg, Susan Ying, P. Zevenhuizen and Paulette Murphy.

Nothing is time-worn in this exhibition, everything is fresh and original. The tired distinction between abstract and realistic becomes redundant before art works so well executed and thought out. I hope that many visitors to the Cultural Centre will enjoy the exhibition, and I thank "Re:Vision" for having mounted Here and Now '93, and event that is a delight and a blessing.
