Raiders stung by Kilty B's

By Mike Zrostek

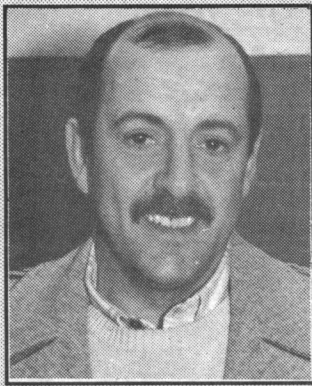

It was a long night in Hamilton last Tuesday for Georgetown Chrysler Raiders goaltender Paul Stinnett, as his mates left him to fend for himself in an 8-2 loss to the Hamilton Kilty B's in Provincial Junior A hockey action.

It was the Raiders first meeting with the new team in the league's West division. Hamilton and Georgetown face each other again tonight in Georgetown, 7:30 p.m. at Gordon Alcott Memorial Arena.

Stinnett faced 41 shots and actually held the Raiders in the game after one period, stopping 15 of 17 shots as the teams played to a 2-2 first period draw.

The Raiders opened the scoring 1:36 into the opening stanza on the first of two goals by Doug Sheppard, who is on an early tear this year now with seven goals in the Raiders first four games.

Hamilton replied with

two before Sheppard scored on a penalty shot after being dragged down from behind knotting the score at 2-2.

From then on it was all Hamilton as they scored six in the next two periods including two from Ron Cybalski and Mike Massis as the Kilty's ran their record to 4-0 in the early going of the season.

Raiders head coach Gary Ford was obviously not pleased his team's effort in this one, as their record dropped to 2-2.

"Some guys showed up and some didn't," said Ford.

"They just left Stinnett all by himself. The only thing we won all night was the fight. They just didn't show up!"

The fight Ford was talking about is the third period squirmish that saw referee Bob Morley throw out 10 players for fighting with 15 minutes left in the game and the score 6-2.

"I didn't even see it start," said Ford. "Hamilton was getting a penalty and the pushing and shoving just led to it."

Ford says there will be some guys lucky to see the ice tonight. He also doesn't expect to see a rerun of the Tuesday night fisticuffs.

The Raiders were in Milton Friday to take on the Merchants. Results weren't available at press time.

The Raiders are off now until Friday when they travel to Burlington to face the Cougars at Central Arena, game time 7:30 p.m. They then host the Oakville Blades Saturday, 7:30 p.m. at Gordon Alcott Memorial Arena.

Dawgs win fourth title

By Colin Gibson

In what some regarded as an anticlimax to an excellent season, defending champion Dawgs dominated the Longhorns 28-12 in the league's playoff championship final last Sunday on a chilly and windswept field at GDHS.

The win by the Dawgs gives them four playoff championships in a row and the fifth time in as many years they have made it to the league playoff championship final.

It was the Longhorns who topped the Dawgs in the Mutts first foray into the championship ring.

According to league insiders, no team has ever won five consecutive playoff championships, so the Hounds from Hogtown will have some incentive to continue their winning ways next year.

The Longhorns were behind the proverbial 8-ball even before the opening kick off.

With the wind howling at about 35 kmh down the length of the field, (it continued throughout the game, with gusts in the higher ranges) Longhorns Jim Lindsay, with first choice, elected to take the ball instead of choosing an end and the Dawgs ended up with the wind at their backs throughout the entire game.

This proved to be a decided disadvantage, as tossed balls from a game Longhorns quarterback, Mike McCandless, dipped and dove, sailed or fell short or rose with the wind throughout the game.

Slippery field conditions didn't help the decidedly non-mobile Longhorns QB either.

Longhorns could manage no more than a pair of Dave Patterson field goals in the first half, while the Dawgs, under the guidance of sure-armed Pat McKinnon, got touchdowns from Al Pelland, John Egan and Terry Enman, plus a two-point convert from Dennis Hanley and a kicking convert from Frank Bruno to lead comfortably, 21-6 at the intermission.

Dawgs receivers seemed to get open deep on the Longhorn defenders, almost at will.

Mark Hamilton snared a McCandless pass for six points to open the second half scoring (the convert was unsuccessful) and get the 'Horns back into the game, but then another deep McKinnon-to-Egan six-pointer (converted by Frank Bruno) both figuratively - and literally because of the chilly conditions - put the game on ice for the eventual winners.

Aside from the saw-off touchdowns, both offenses sputtered in the second half.

The Dawgs defense also played an important role in the championship win, with both Egan and Pelland snaring interceptions.

League trophy winners

It was time to hand out the silverware last Sunday following the cessation of hostilities - for this summer anyway - in the Georgetown Mens Flag Football League.

Dawgs quarterback Pat McKinnon, who guided his mates to a convincing 28-12 triumph in the league's playoff championship final earlier in the day, deservedly walked off with two trophies.

He was selected his team's and the league's Most Valuable Player.

Dawgs teammate John Egan, was selected the playoffs Most Valuable Player.

The league's Best Defensive Player award went to Plus Welding's Greg Lawr. His six interceptions led the league during regular season play.

The Dawgs Al Pelland romped to the league scoring title collecting 118 points.

League President Gord McNeilly, was presented with a trophy in recognition of his contribution to the league this year.

Other team MVPs included; for M&M Pro Sports, Richard Garden. For Plus Welding, Paul Sargent. For Muscle Pit, Rob Walker. For Meznic Electric, Hal Hulme and for the Longhorns, Jim Lindsay.
