Bennett off to Edmonton

Adam Bennett

Georgetown hockey product Adam Bennett was traded to the Edmonton Oilers last week from the Chicago Blackhawks, who got winger Kevin Todd in return.

Bennett, who before he left for the Blackhawks training camp in August thought he had a good chance to crack Chicago's line-up, quickly saw the situation turn around.

He was sent to the Indianapolis Ice of the American Hockey League early in spring training and was obviously disappointed.

"They (Blackhawks management) told him this spring they were going with the youth movement and this fall they didn't tell him anything," said his father, Keith Bennett.

The trade should help both Bennett and the Hawks. Bennett should get ice time with the rebuilding Oilers, especially if the rumors about defenseman Dave Manson being traded come true.

Chicago has been looking for wingers because the situation with disgruntled Steve Larmer hasn't been ironed out yet and Todd can get points and should flourish in Chicago.

Todd scored 21 goals and 42 assists for 63 points in 1991 for the New Jersey Devils in his first year in the NHL.

In the 1992-93 season Todd suffered from the dreaded sophomore jinx and was traded midway through the season to Edmonton, finishing the campaign with only 9 goals and 14 assists for 23 points in 55 games.

Bennett was Chicago's sixth pick overall in the 1989 National Hockey League Summer entry draft and played two full seasons with Indianapolis.

Sheridan axes sports teams

Sheridan College has been forced to cut six inter-collegiate sports teams this year because of budget restraints.

Badminton, golf, skiing, cross-country, women's volleyball and women's outdoor soccer teams were eliminated after the school had its operating budget slashed by 25 per cent this past summer. This leaves Sheridan with only four teams competing in the Ontario Colleges Athletic Association.

As part of overall budget cuts at the school, $130,000 was slashed from the athletic department.

The four teams left are the men's basketball, volleyball and soccer teams, and the women's indoor soccer team.
