Super Tips

By John Hamilton

Soon winter will be arriving and so will the salt trucks. Salt is one of the main factors in the corrosion of automobiles. Super Lube (Armstrong and Mountain-view) will oil undercoat your automobile to protect against this corrosion. We use dripless oil-based undercoating which is sprayed underneath and in the doors and panels where it creeps to protect against rust. Now is the time to get this done as is evidenced by the large volume of vehicles we at Super Lube spray at this time of year.

Also this is the time of year to change your oil over to SW-30. Most new cars recommend SW-30 oil all year round (but especially in the winter). Older cars may still use 10W30 oil but the trend is towards SW-30 oil. This is thinner oil that circulates much faster during cold weather start-ups. In cold weather, you should let your car idle for tow or three minutes before driving away slowly. No less and no longer. It is important to change your oil every 3 months or 5,000 km. Drivers who change their oil frequently have engines that usually last a lot longer and perform better. It's cheap preventative maintenance.

One last tip. Keep your car clean and you will probably respect and look after it better.
