THE AUTUMN II

It would seem that my column on "The Autumn" touched a few nerves. Some readers have taken me to task for painting Autumn as an "all fun" season. Some of their comments follow.

Bill, if your idea of Autumn is a walk in the woods, you have apparently never planted 300 spring flowering bulbs. Think about all the digging and raking and down on your knees, in the dirt, making sure the red ones are not mixed with the yellow ones. Think about that - Buster!

It's great to talk about a burst of burgundy from a wild cherry. Well, how about a burst of ice cold water down your body, when you are shutting down your swimming pool? That's fall work - Daddy-O - and don't forget it! Don't forget to drain the pump and stow it safely. Lug that pool cover out and get it on straight - and try to find a volunteer to help - forget it!

Sure, wax poetic about the golden Cottonwood grove. Let's see if you can wax poetic about slugging a cord of hardwood to the back of the garage - and piling it! But - I say - doesn't that piling of wood for the long cold winter make you feel - sort of - pioneering. Sort of back to basics. Sort of the family provider. You say you have already supplied a perfectly good thermostat to provide for the cold winter!

Anybody that gets ecstatic about the colour of golden rod should come help me clean up the vegetable garden and the flower beds. You were the guy that wrote about the promise of frost! Ha! In Canada - it is not a promise - it's a threat! Come and bundle up the tomato plants and the lovely frozen petunias and geraniums. Promise of frost - shake your head!

And that talk about scuffing your shoes through the fallen leaves! Sounds great! Bring an armful of orange leaf bags and your rake. Bill, my friend, you can scuff your shoes through the fallen leaves, in our yard, to your heart's content, so long as you keep the rake moving. Still feeling romantic about leaves?

Bill, old buddy, while you are admiring that golden sunshine of autumn, you can give me a hand to stow all the summer furniture in the garage. I call it a good old slugging time, in the golden sunshine. You bet, that picnic table is heavy, but this is a fun fall thing - let's go!

And then there were the people who said they always had a natural Thanksgiving centre piece on their table. They made a lot of great suggestions. Next year, I will try some chestnuts, and red hawthorne berries and various shades of hardy fall mums and some fresh aromatic cedar twigs.

Everybody said that they did have a family get together at Thanksgiving and yes, they did have a great time. They assure me that they did count their blessings - and that is what Thanksgiving was all about, Charlie Brown!
