Distress Centre 20th Anniversary

By Eileen Ross.

The North Halton Distress Centre is holding a reception on Nov. 15 to mark 20 years of invaluable service to the public. All past and present volunteers are cordially invited to attend the special evening, which starts at 7 p.m.

Those planning to attend are asked to RSVP before Nov. 8.

The very first call came at 8:40 p.m. Nov. 15, 1973 and the Centre has continued successfully since then, proving to be a viable - and needed community resource in Halton Hills.

The Distress Centre is devoted to helping people with their problems, or just being there when a caller just needs someone to talk to. It also act as an information centre for the Red Cross after hours and for Meals on Wheels, Alcoholics Anonymous and Al-Anon.

The North Halton Distress Centre also provides a transportation service and also makes calls to seniors for security reasons, or on a friendly basis just to chat with seniors.

Some of the calls range from being as simple as providing a piece of information, to something as difficult as someone contemplating suicide. Other calls come from people who are angry and in need of an outlet.

People who are lonely or feel they can't speak to their friends or family, make up the largest percentage of callers. People who are already involved in counseling, but whose counselor is unavailable, often call to speak to someone about their problems.

The anonymity factor stressed at the North Halton Distress Centre helps callers in the sense of knowing that whatever they speak to the volunteer about will be kept in complete confidentiality. "Callers need not give their name unless they want to," says Judy Rasanen of the North Halton Distress Centre.

If you want to become a volunteer for the North Halton Distress Centre, you must be at least 18-years-old. The centre holds training periods that last six weeks in the spring and fall and runs ads in area papers informing the public when and where the sessions will be held.

After the prospective trainee has contacted the centre, they are sent application forms to fill out. They are given an interview and references are a must. There is a one-year commitment once you have become a volunteer.

Rasanen points out "Usually a trainee wants to become a volunteer because either they have needed someone to talk to in their life, or they have known someone who has needed someone to talk to."

For further information on the North Halton Distress Centre, how it works and how you can help out, telephone 905-877-1211.

UWC Author's Night

This Tuesday, Shari Darling, author of "Canada's Wine Country Cookbook" and "Discovering Ontario's Wine Country" will be speaking at the monthly meeting of the University women's Club of Georgetown. The public is cordially invited to attend the event to be held at the George Kennedy Public School Library at 8:15 p.m.

Shari Darling is a freelance journalist who writes for newspapers and magazine, including the Globe and Mail, Toronto Star, Canadian Gardening, London Free Press and Chatelaine.

Macmillan Canada, the book's publisher, says that "Canadian wineries have come of age and Canada's Wine Country Cookbook is a celebration of this excellence in food and wine".

The evening will begin with an informal coffee time, then the author will speak about her books, inspirations and writing style. Copies of Shari Darling's books will be available for purchase that evening from Norman Holt of Oxbow Books.
