GLT auditions

The latest to come from Georgetown Little Theatre is the news that no longer is An Inspector Calls on the 93/94 playbill! It would seem this very same production will be performed on Broadway, so GLT was asked to take a curtain call and "bow out." They must have heard GLT was too good to compete with!

At any rate, not to be discouraged, GLT has substituted David V. Robinson's Promenade All! as their presentation in February. Promenade is a unique comedy in that it takes place between 1895 and 1975, depicting four successive generations of the same family. And in the tradition of GLT's successful presentation of The Curate Shakespeare As You Like It, Promenade demands that four actors take on several different roles to help illustrate its story!

Auditions will take place Dec. 14 and 15, 7:30 p.m. at 33 Stewarttown Road, shortly after GLT's Christmas pantomime wraps up on the 12th. For information on this, or any GLT production, please call our box office at 877-3700.

Cockneys Sally and Bill (played by Allyson Tracey and Keith Mills) have some fun when they visit Hareford Hall, in Georgetown Globe Productions' musical "Me and My Girl". The show opens Nov. 18 and runs till Dec. 4 at the John Elliott Theatre. Tickets are available at Royal LePage Real Estate or call 877-4323.

Class acts in 'Me and My Girl'

David Brock and Lois Fraser have a lot in common. They are both employed in family businesses and they started their acting careers in Purple Patches' productions at the University of Western Ontario. They are also engaged in Globe Productions' "Me and My Girl, which opens Nov. 18 at the John Elliott Theatre.

David Brock's character, Gerald, is an upper class twit who wouldn't consider damaging his family's reputation by "getting a job". He has been counting on inheriting the Hareford millions with the help of his fiancé, Lady Jaqueline Carson, played by Lois Fraser. But, Jaqueline is not lady and promptly dumps him in order to pursue, through any possible means (if you catch my drift), the new heir to the family fortune. Jaqueline coolly informs him that "she can't afford to mix business with pleasure" and the chase begins.

David and Lois are both experienced actors. David played in "The Boyfriend" at Western and traveled for three years with the "Up With People" production team. He played in Georgetown Little Theatre's "Lunch Hour", as well as chorus in Globe's "The Mikado" and Prince Charming in Globe's "Into the Woods".

Lois Fraser has performed in 20 productions and is a well-known local singer. Memorable roles at Georgetown Little Theatre include Truvy Jones in "Steel Magnolias", Helene Hanff in "84 Charing Cross Road" and Elvira the ghost in "Blithe Spirit". Lois' first role at Globe was Laurie in "Oklahoma" and she recently enjoyed a chorus role in "The Mikado".

If you would like to know to what extent Lady Jaqueline will stoop to get the Earl or whether Gerald can persuade her to come back to him, family fortune or not, come to see "Me and My Girl". Tickets for Nov. 18 - Dec. 4 performances are on sale now at Royal LePage, 170 Guelph Street.
