

Lioness food drive still in need of donations

By Oksana Buhel

The aptly named Good Neighbors Christmas food drive, organized by the Georgetown Lionesses, is nearing its end but food drive coordinator Madeline Collier insists the need for food and funds is still grave.

In the past several years, the Lionesses have collected hundreds of hampers full of food.

Hampers are filled with turkey, potatoes, carrots, turnips, canned vegetables, soups, fruit and toys, Collier explained. The food is collected from various drop-off points in Georgetown schools and churches.

The collected food will be brought to 348 Guelph St. where Lionesses and volunteers will sort and distribute it.

"There will be a lot of work to do," Collier admitted. She is being helped in her co-ordination work by Lill Chapman. "The volunteers help us out quite a bit."

Cheques, which will be used to buy turkeys, fruits and vegetables will also be gratefully accepted, Collier said and can be sent to her at 11 Orchard Boulevard, Georgetown, L7G 2Y7.

Any food left over at the end of the food drive will be donated to the Georgetown Love in Christ Food Bank.
