

Dr. Kumar bows out of obstetrics

Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital's only obstetrician has announced her departure from the practice, but the search for her replacement has not yet been successful.

Dr. Valerie Kumar has been practising obstetrics in the community for 15 years, during which time she has been on-call 24 hours a day. Dr. Kumar said a personal need to ease up on her workload and a lack of family time influenced her decision to only continue with her gynaecological services.

A recruitment team, led by Dr. Debbie Zeni, is searching for a new obstetrician for the hospital.

"We've had a few nibbles," said executive hospital director John Oliver. He attributed the lack of success in finding an obstetrician to the every-hour-all-day job requirements and the small number of obstetrical specialists.

Oliver added five family doctors will deal with obstetrics for the time being, but cesarean sections will be done by general surgeon, Dr. Arthur Chiu or a back-up cesarean support doctor.

Complicated cases will be transferred to another hospital, most likely the Oakville-Trafalgar Hospital.

Four new doctors for day surgery

Four new specialists will be brought in from Brampton one day a week to Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital on a day surgery basis.

The GDMH board of directors authorized the addition of the new surgeons to the hospital's surgical department at Thursday evening's board meeting.

Dr. Doug McClure, an Ear/Nose/Throat surgeon and doctors Don Prior, John Corless and John Newall, all orthopedic surgeons, will be operating on a day surgery basis, and this will cut down the necessity of patients driving to Brampton for the same operation.
