It's Beginning to Feel a Lot Like Christmas!

By George Perdue, B. Sc. P. Eng.

The stores are busy. Everyone is talking about Christmas parties and socializing with friends and family. My brother-in-law is deep into his creative baking routine. Everyone else is likewise engaged. And then there is my brother. Is he in for a surprise for Christmas!

There it was. In the Nature Store it sat in splendid innocence. I picked up this smallish box - cigar box style - and I read "Glows in the Dark Activity Box". Perfect! It wouldn't seem like Christmas without a winner gift for Uncle Tom. Now these aren't easy to select. They must be associated with the prevailing circumstances. Then you have to find them. And then...

Isn't all the diversion great for a change? Nobody seems caught up in politics or the weather or... It seems to give us all a break from the aging process associated with everyday life. At least recent years seem to have left their mark on the majority of people.

The one thing I know that's in store for me is the conversion of my Placer Dome gold stock to something with a less volatile return. It only took 15 years to double - about 4 1/2 percent compounded! It's the only remaining stock from my "Vegas" days and it feels great to be out at long last.

Most investors are feeling buoyant and in the Christmas mood. After all, 1993 has been a banner year - even in the midst of all the unemployment and so forth. More aggressive investors have realized gains in excess of 30 percent this year and for them Christmas has arrived early. Even more encouraging, investors with as little as $30 per month have participated.

Visions of continued returns are dancing in the heads of many investors. Used to the heady returns of '93 they expect more of the same next year. We hope their expectations are not too high. While we believe returns will be good in '94, we do not expect a repeat of '93. Decisions will be more difficult and portfolios will be more sophisticated.

Money Talk

with George Perdue

None of this should interfere with a good holiday and a welcome break before the new year.

We wish everyone a relaxing holiday season and visions of prosperity in the coming year.

George Perdue is a business consultant, financial planner, and a partner in Money Concepts, Halton Hills. He and his associates Aysen Abaci, Pierre Brianceau, Peter Chaperlin, Karen Perdue and Brett Worby can be reached at (905) 873-1877. RRSP workshops will be held during January and February.
