

756 Squadron Air Cadets visit Ottawa

By Capt. G. Siekierko
Special to HHTW

On the weekend of Dec. 10-12, 39 Air Cadets of Georgetown 756 Royal Canadian Squadron toured our nation's capital.

Leaving Georgetown on Friday the 10th of Dec., the anticipation on the bus was at a high. Everyone was geared up for the trip.

The cadets were also looking forward to showing off their new blue uniforms.

Upon arrival at the Connaught Ranges, where we were accommodated, we were greeted with a -26°C wind chill. This would be the weather for the entire trip.

Saturday morning began at 6 a.m. Following a hearty breakfast at the mess, the cadets were off to tour the parliament buildings. The guided tour included stops at the House of Commons, the Senate Chamber and the beautiful Parliamentary library.

The interior of the Parliament buildings were beautifully decorated for Christmas.

Next, it was on to the Canadian War Museum. Here, the cadets were able to view many artifacts, uniforms and other related items depicting the sacrifices of our men and women who served our great country. From here the bus drove us past the new Canadian Peace Memorial, commemorating Canada's continuing UN commitment.

Now we were off to the Canadian Air Museum.

The museum holds many fine examples, not only of Canada's military aircraft but of the many others that forged Canada's aviation history.

With the sun setting and a very busy day behind us, we headed for our barracks.

After some free time, the cadets headed to mess. Our evening was spent in Ottawa taking in a movie.

Sunday also began at 6 a.m. We moved out of our barracks and loaded the bus for the trip home.

With abundant energy from our excellent breakfast at the mess, our squadron headed back to Ottawa for our final stop, the Science and Technology Museum. This was enjoyed by all the members.

After eating the box lunches supplied by the mess, we began our long trip home.

After a few stops along the way, we finally arrived back in Georgetown.

Although we were all tired from our busy weekend, the cadets and staff reflected on all that we had done and seen and agreed this had been a truly memorable trip.

Thirty-nine air cadets of Georgetown 756 Royal Canadian Squadron had an enjoyable (but tiring) trip to Ottawa, the weekend of Dec. 10-12. The guided tour of the Parliament buildings included stops at the House of Commons, the Senate Chamber and the beautiful Parliamentary library. photo submitted
