Cross country revival at Acton High?

BY FRANCES NIBLOCK
 Acton High School teacher Bruce Andrews hopes to revive the cross-country running program at the school by attracting younger kids from local schools.
 "To build a club you have to make sure the kids in younger grades know there is a cross-country team. That's why I set up an Acton Elementary School Championship last week," Andrews explained on Monday.

 The meet was won overall by students from St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Separate School in Acton.

"Two or three years ago the cross country program at the high school faded because of lack of interest. But now I hope to encourage more kids to think about the program. If I can show them how much fun it is, when they get to high school they may be interested,"

Andrews said.
 Today (Wednesday) at 4 pm Andrews is staging another cross-country meet at Acton High. This one is open to all schools in north Halton and Andrews said he may open future meets up to students at McKenzie-Smith Middle School and Robert Little.
