with those in need. Through the labour and tax-deductible donations of money and supplies, homes are built or renovated and sold at no profit to partner families who get no-interest mortgages.

"After we build one house in a developed community, 10 per cent is given back to the Habitat for Humanity World Fund that we take and build houses in Jamaica or El Salvador," said Martin, who believes everyone deserves a decent and safe place to live.

"Habitat for Humanity Canada draws in all sectors of society — rich and poor — sweating together to build homes," explained Martin, adding "Canada was built with Canadians helping each other."

Design plans are final

Councillor Gerald Rennie, chair of the building committee, said they met with the architect Thursday evening and came up with a final revision of the design plans.

"The architect must now find out what it will cost to build and operate the centre in the configuration we have decided on. With the Town's $32,000 and at least $10,000 from the seniors we may well be able to get into the building this year," Rennie said in an interview Sunday.

Rennie said they hope to have a final report from the architect within months.

Cellular conversation March 18?

Rural Acton residents hope to open the lines of communication with Rogers Cantel at a special meeting tentatively scheduled for Thursday, March 18 at the Acton Fire Hall.

The residents, who live in the Highway 7-Dublin Line area, are incensed that Cantel plans to erect a 340-foot cellular communications tower in their midst.

After being told the Town has no jurisdiction over the proposal because it is a federal matter, the residents appealed to Council to try to set up a meeting with Cantel officials.

Residents hope to convince Cantel to relocate the tower to an area that will affect fewer people.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

"It's a bit sad that we can't have leadership based on ideas instead of bank accounts. I'd like to see if I can run a smart, intelligent campaign that doesn't cost a lot of money but gets the dialogue going on how we get better politics in Canada."
