like this you can't create, for example, spirit from a football team because there isn't one."

The outdoor education program will be among Caldarelli's fondest memories of Acton High. "I really got close to the students," says Caldarelli. "I'll remember how close we got and some of the teaching we were able to do out there about real life."

Caldarelli says he is impressed and appreciative of community support for Acton High. "No other community that I know of has so many people contribute to an awards evening," he says.

Caldarelli says of his Acton colleagues, "They are a fine, dedicated and professional group. They do so much to support the kids. All the advantages of a small school you can find right here." Beginning in January, the new principal of Acton High School will be Joyce Bradley. She comes to Acton from Q.E. Park High School in Oakville.

For the first semester, current vice principal Bert O'Hearn will be acting principal, with teacher and head of science Paul Tamblyn (who also won an Award for Creativity in Education this year) filling in as acting vice principal.
