Acton IGA, Rotary Club and town all 'clean up'

Special to The Tanner
Both the Town of Acton and the Rotary Club for Easter Seals were winners this past weekend.

The community of Acton, through IGA's Hometown Proud clean-up campaign, had several areas cleaned of debris on Saturday morning.

Armed with garbage bags supplied free of charge by Glad, volunteers separated recyclable and non-recyclable trash and brought it back to the IGA, where it was picked up by the Town.

In return volunteers received a hot dog and pop free of charge. The Rotary Club for Easter Seals raised $163 through sales of hot dogs and pop.

Joan McCrystal, Kelly McArthur and other staff members of the IGA, along with Jake Kuiken of the Acton Rotary Club for Easter Seals, kept the hot dogs sizzling.

Acton IGA owner Dave Manes hopes this project will have far-reaching effects. "Maybe people will start to think before they throw something out the window and have respect for their community."

Newspaper shuts down

Twice-weekly newspaper Halton Hills This Week closed its doors on Friday after almost two years of operation.

Principal owner Bill Whitaker, Sr. informed staff on Friday afternoon of his decision to shut down operations at the Georgetown newspaper.

Whitaker's Oakville-based Q.E. Web Printing company still publishes a pair of "Shopping News" papers in Oakville and Milton, along with the weekly Oakville Free Press Journal.

Reached by telephone at his Oakville office on Monday afternoon, Whitaker's only comment was that "the paper is down for financial reasons."

Whitaker did confirm that some office staff would remain working for a period of time as the operation wound down.

PLUG IN

HALTON HILLS HYDRO

ARE YOU OVER EXTENDING
SYSTEM?

So many things to plug in, so few outlets to plug them in to. It's a common problem these days, especially in older houses.

Many people use extension cords or multiple plugs to handle everything. And soon every outlet begins to look like an octopus. That's not a safe way to deal with electricity. Overloading outlets is dangerous. Every year fires are started by misuse of electricity. If you don't have enough outlets, have a qualified electrician install more. It's also a good idea to have your service upgraded so your system can take the electrical demands of today's labour saving appliances.

SAFETY - EFFICIENCY

On May 20 and 26, 1994, Halton Hills Hydro Commission will be conducting a Public School Student Safety and Conservation Program at the four public schools in Acton. If this proves successful and worthwhile, the program will be extended to all the public schools in Halton Hills.
