Acton Tabby cat shot twice

While the damage they've already done is costly, pellet gun-wielding Acton youths might soon cause more serious problems. Especially if a local resident accidentally steps in the way of the vandals.

"I'm concerned, because this could turn out to be really dangerous," warned Ria Vandermeer on Monday. "The risk is that someone could actually be shot."

Vandermeer's year-old tabby cat, named Buddy, is recuperating after being shot twice in the back last week, and the Victoria Avenue resident vows she'll be doing some investigation work of her own to try and find out the guilty gun-owner.

"The police officer said it probably was some kids," she said.

"Buddy was in rough shape so I took him to the vet's on Thursday," said Vandermeer. "The vet discovered that he'd been shot with two pellets, and said the wounds were a couple of days old."

The vet was able to remove only one of the pellets, which entered the grey-black cat near its spine. "The other pellet was in too deep," reported Vandermeer.

The operation cost the cat-owner $400.

Two weeks ago The Tanner reported that a pellet gun was used to shoot out the rear window of a car on Tidey Avenue. Some $600 damage resulted.
