Hockey Tampa-style

They don't miss a trick in Tampa when it comes to hockey, that's for sure. If you don't like the game there is lots to do instead. For instance, when I was there doing a game for Hockey Night in Canada last year, they had a zillion things to do, starting with a batting cage, a pro to teach you how to hit golf balls in a golfing range, a player to teach you how to take a slapshot and a radar gun to see how fast you fired it.

There's a basketball player to show you how to shoot the right way on a full basketball court, and you could watch the college football game on a giant screen. There's even a baseball pitcher to show you how to throw a curve ball, two batting cages, ping pong tables, a merry-go-round, Japanese Sumo wrestling and a bowling alley.

They sure give the fans their money's worth. They must be doing something right—the night I was there they had 23,000 people in the stands!
