ASSIC gets 9,568 calls in '94

Acton Support Services and Information Centre is now a fully accredited community information centre (CIC).

As a member of the Association of Community Information Centres in Ontario (ACICO), ASSIC recently was one of 60

CICs across the province to successfully complete their accreditation process.

At ACICO's annual conference at the beginning of June, ASSIC was presented with a plaque marking their new status.

ASSIC's database includes information community groups and organizations, government services, self-help and support groups, child care and special interest groups. At the Willow Street office there is information on anything from who to talk to about a colicky baby or an elderly parent to where to find help when dealing with racism or drug addiction.

ASSIC's offices are used by 13 different groups and agencies whose services might otherwise not be available in Acton.

In 1994 ASSIC received 9,568 information calls and drop-ins.
