

Halton Region improves development application process

The Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM) recently released the case study "Co-ordinated and Standardized Development Processing Procedures," which was undertaken by Halton Region to develop initiatives to streamline the development application process in Halton.

The project has met all of its objectives: improved customer service and more timely decisions for developers, less time and cost spent by local, regional and agency staff, better co-ordination of processing and planning advice beginning with preconsultation which ensures complete, consistent and appropriately detailed applications allowing for early identification of problem areas.

Halton is the first and only two-tier region to have successfully implemented a regional co-ordinated approvals system.

These initiatives are a significant success for the Region. In fact, the province has used the Halton model to produce its "Guide to Provincial Planning Applications," for use by all municipalities and developers in Ontario.
