

Videos let couples relive their day again and again!

A videotape of their wedding day provides the new couple, as well as their friends and family, with the opportunity to relive the fun of the ceremony and reception for years to come.

Videographers can be used in addition to photographers to capture the live moments on tape. Wedding planners recommend that couples always check references and ask to view examples of previous recordings the videographer has from other receptions.

They should ask the videographer to visit the reception site prior to the big day in order to check room setup, see if extra light is needed, determine positioning of equipment, and plan the expected flow of people and action.

People should choose a videographer who provides the best services, videos and price within budget limits to fit their needs. Once a video package is decided upon, it is important for both parties to sign a written contract for these services.

Videotaping is a great way to relive the joy and festivities of the wedding and cherish those memories for years to come.

The origins of wedding cake

The centre of attraction at any wedding reception is the cake, but probably few people know of its origin.

The wedding cake dates back to Roman times and symbolizes fertility and good luck. In fact Romans were known to crumble pieces of cake over the newlyweds to ensure prosperity and the Chinese started the custom of giving cake to guests, and those who could not attend, as a good luck symbol.

England for centuries had a tradition whereby the guests would each bring a bun. These would be piled in a mound and if the bride and groom could lean over from opposite sides and kiss without upsetting the mound, they would have a long and happy life together.

In some Pacific Islands the eating of the cake actually constitutes the wedding ceremony.

Several myths surround the wedding cake. The custom of the bride and groom cutting the cake together symbolizes that they will share everything, but if the groom attempts to do it on his own then the marriage will be childless.

The bride should always keep a slice of cake as this will make sure that her husband remains faithful. A young single girl will dream of her future husband if she puts a slice of cake under her pillow.

Finally it is said to be very bad luck for the bride to make, or even help make, her own cake and by tasting it before her wedding day, she ensures the loss of her husband's love.
