

Campbellville Harvest Festival

By ANN KORNUA

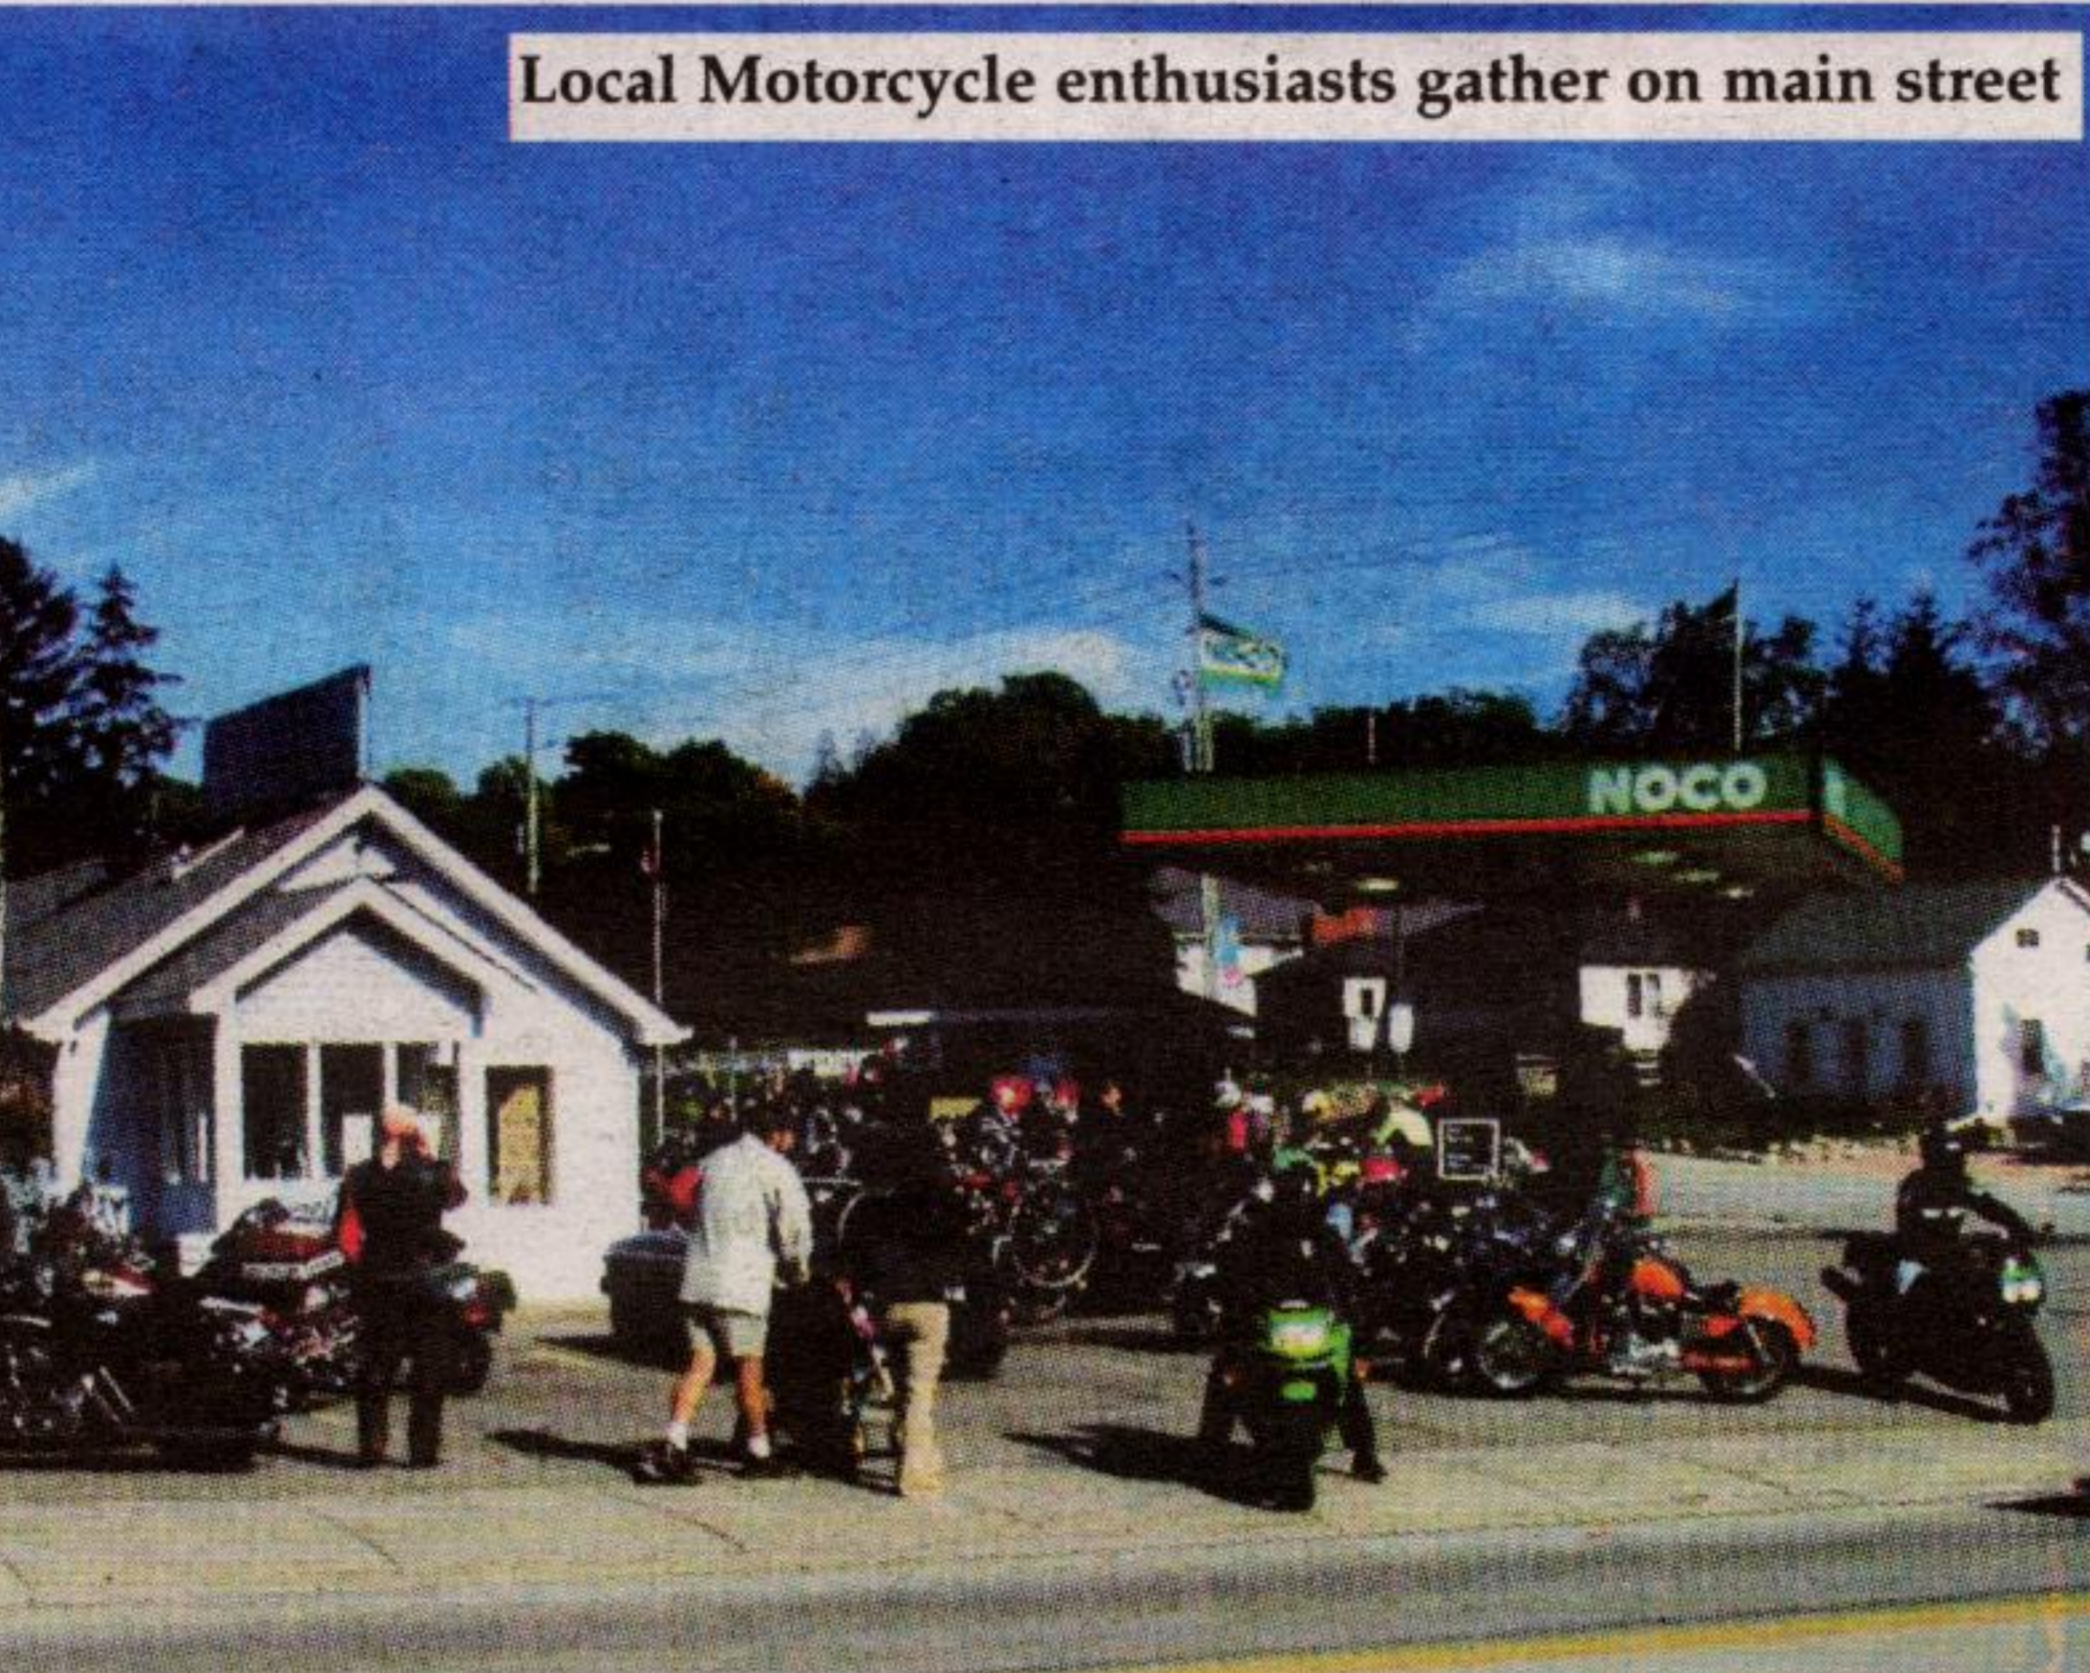

October is the month of harvest and in Campbellville this past weekend many came out to celebrate the season and to enjoy the great shopping that this small village has to offer. Main Street was decorated with harvest scenes; from pumpkins to scarecrows, bringing colour and a sensation of autumn. With live musical entertainment and performing clowns the two day harvest celebration was enjoyed by crowds of visitors. Families from all over the Halton Region came out to participate in the afternoon activities, despite the presence of rain clouds on Saturday.

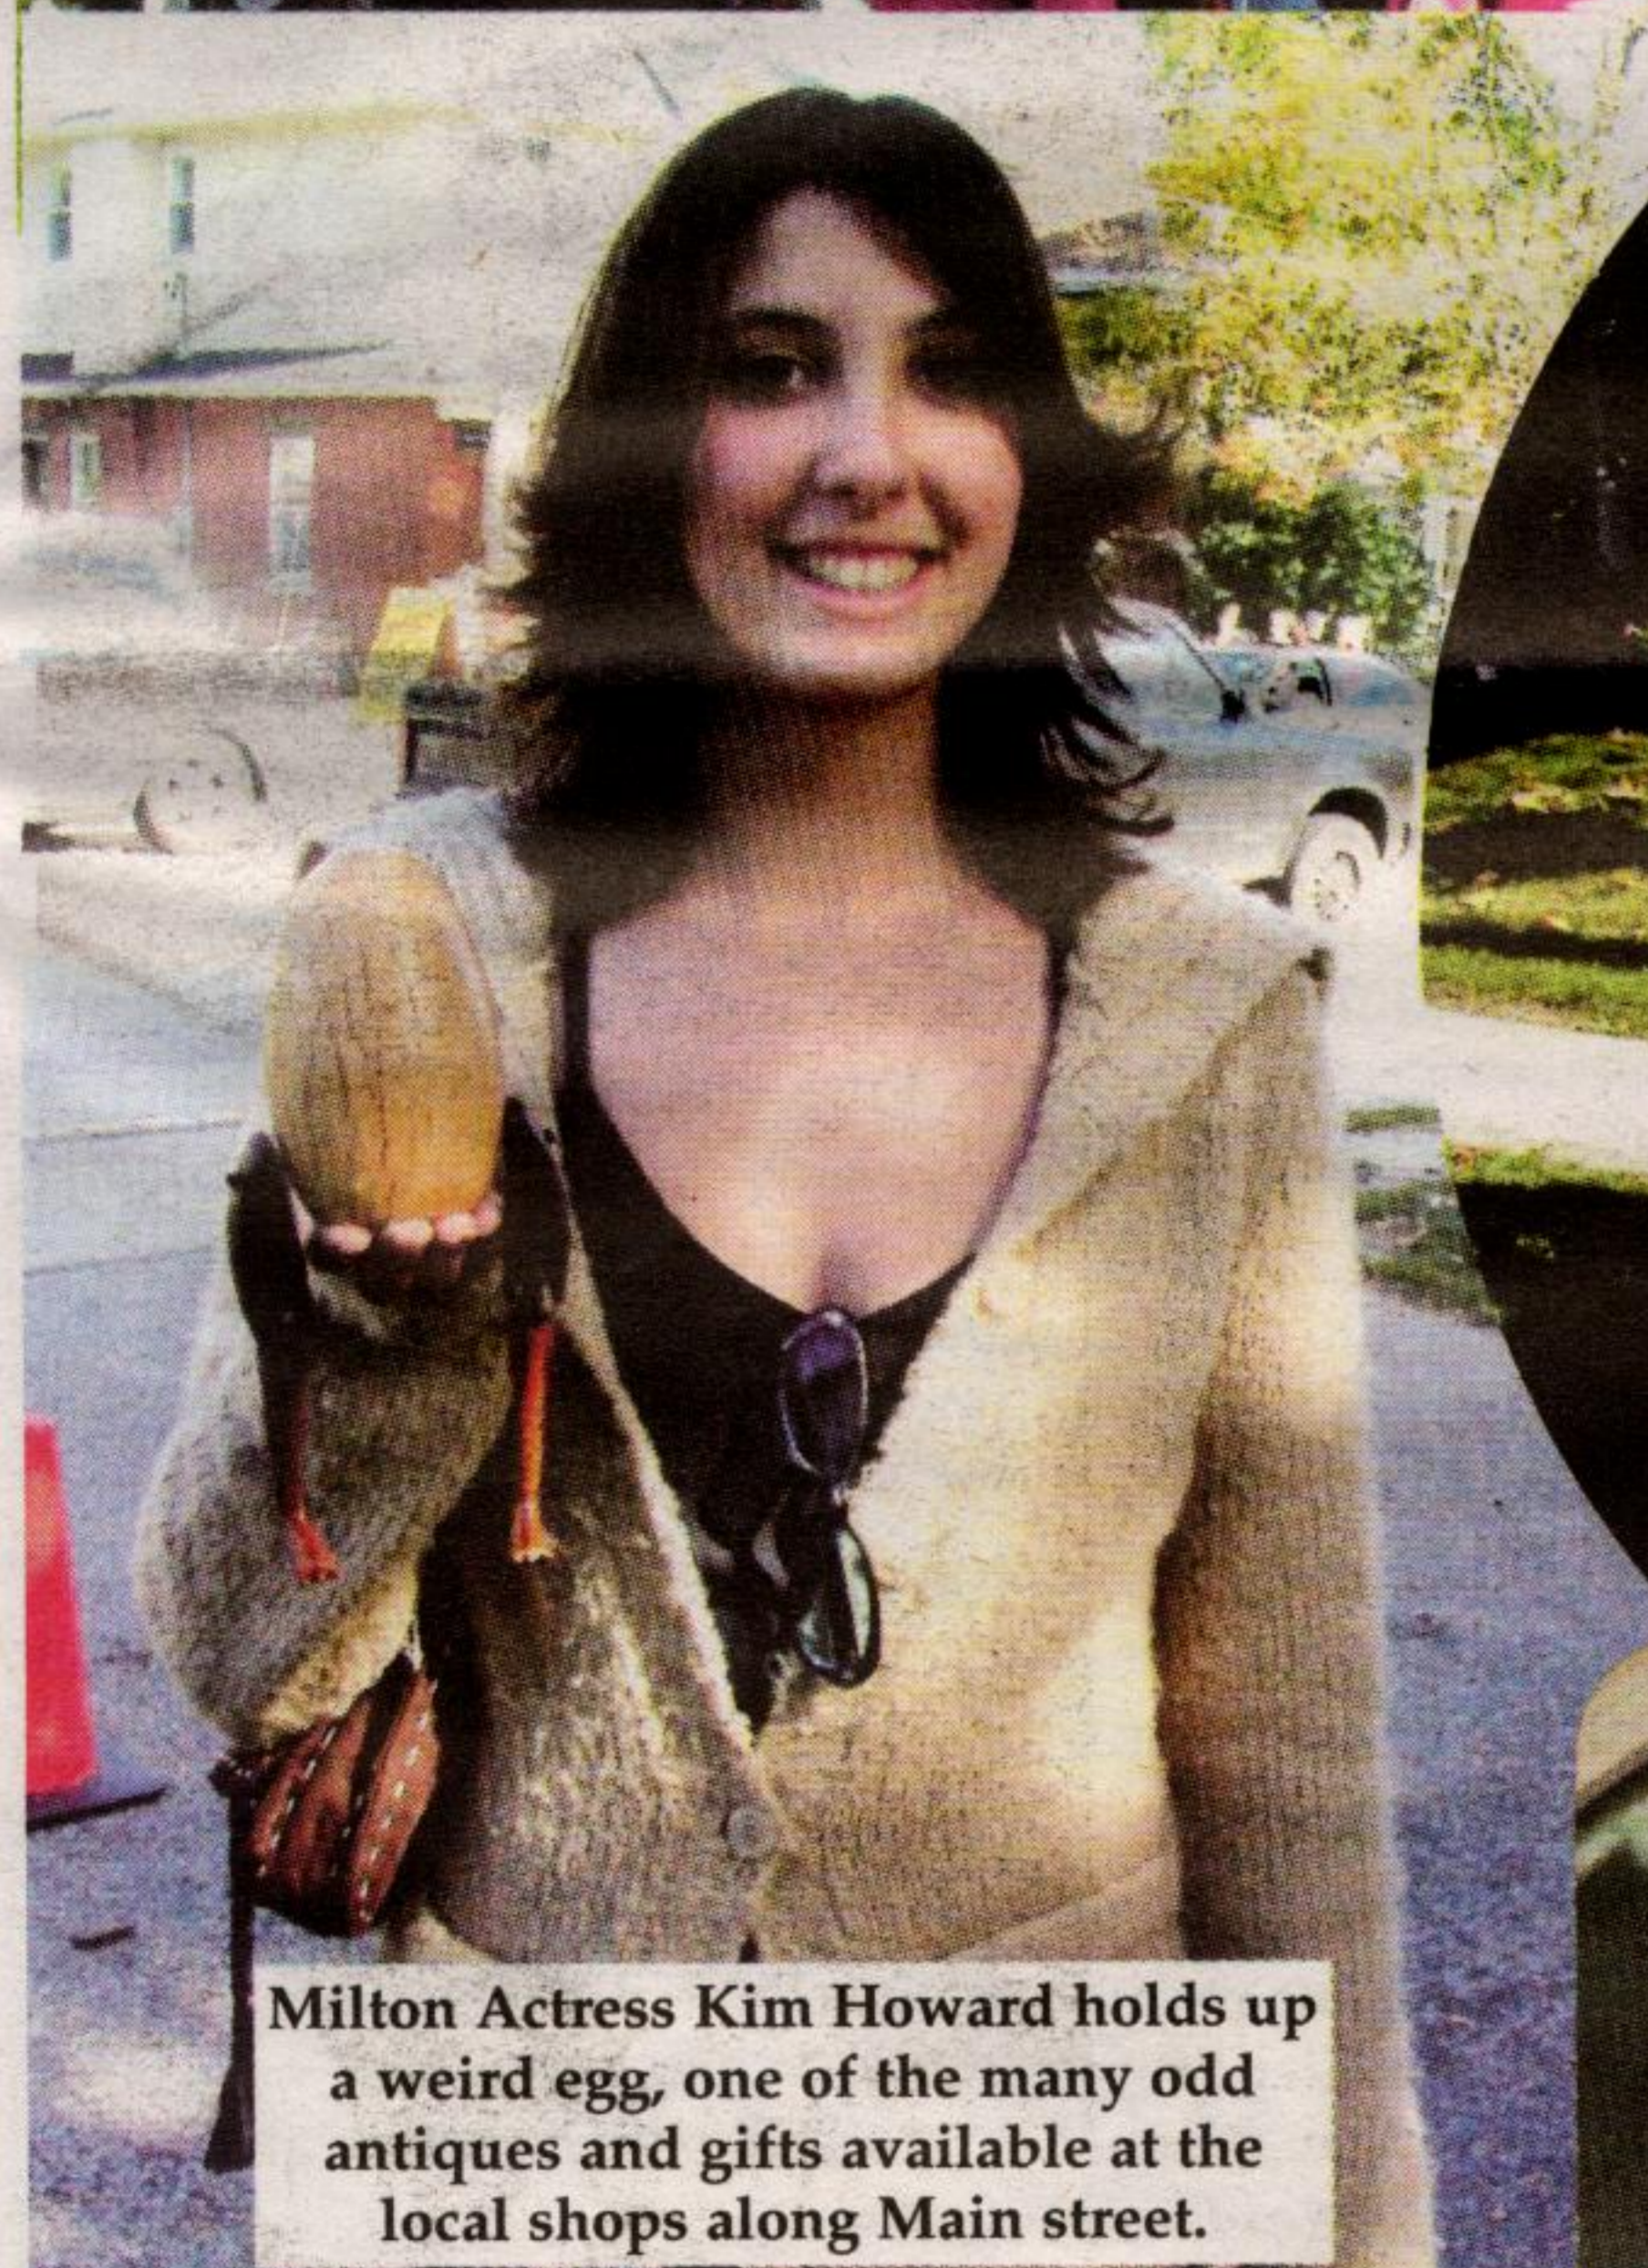

Sniglet the Clown dubs Jaelyn Martin the Queen of Hearts as she delights children and families alike with her balloon animals and face paintings.

Campbellville decorated streets invite the harvest season

Local Motorcycle enthusiasts gather on main street

Milton Actress Kim Howard holds up a weird egg, one of the many odd antiques and gifts available at the local shops along Main street.

Little Liam holds onto his balloon puppy as it dips in the air while his mother Alison Dobson looks on

A family of scarecrows is always a welcome sight at a harvest festival

Five-year Harvest Festival performer Ronnie Robertson sings from the deck of the Scotia Bank on Main Street.

Campbellville streets were decorated with all the colours of fall.
