

The Eyes of the Community

By ANN KORNUTA

Citizens can help reduce crime by actively participating in a watch program in their community. Crime prevention is about staying one step ahead of the bad guys. Constable Kate Pulford is the liaison between police and Milton public. "Neighbourhood Watch has been a program in Milton for a long time; it just needs a little TLC to get all the residents involved," Constable Pulford said.

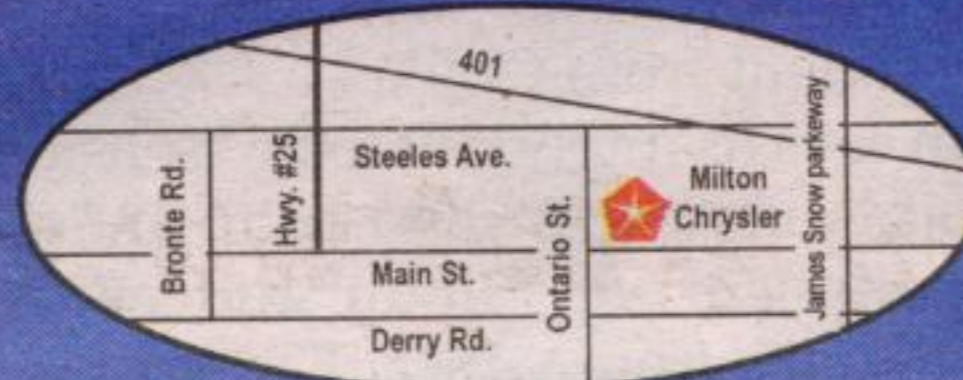

Constable Pulford has been Milton's community watch director for years. She just completed her 15th year of policing with Halton Regional Police Service. As a uniformed patrol officer, Constable Pulford was aware of the Neighbourhood Watch program but was not involved until she became the Community Support Officer in Milton in January 2004. It has taken time to network with other Neighbourhood Watch groups, and learn how to use their experience in the Milton Program. The neighbourhood Watch program shows that setting up a network system in the neighbourhood makes the homes safer. People in the program are shown how to make their homes a less likely target for crime and vandalism. Constable Pulford explained, "When I get a call from a person who is interested in starting a neighbourhood watch or joining one, I gather up some information packages, meet with them and have a cup of coffee. We look at what it will take to get the neighbours involved."
