Children's Vision and Learning Month

Healthy vision is essential to learning. This makes it especially important for every student to undergo a comprehensive vision examination before starting school. Without a full eye exam by a qualified eye-care professional, vision problems can go undetected, often leading to difficulties in the classroom. That's because a standard "20/20" eye chart test does not measure how well a child can see at close distances, depth perception, eye coordination or focusing ability. In addition, many children do not report vision problems because they assume the way they are seeing things is "normal".

If your child exhibits some of the following signs, he or she may be dealing with a potential vision problem.

- Failure to recognize the same word in next sentence
- Confusion of words that look similar
- Messy handwriting
- Poor reading comprehension
- Frequent loss of place when reading
- Eye discomfort or headaches following reading

Ensure your child is seeing the full picture; schedule a back-to-school vision examination today.
