whether with a snake, a tiger or a tarantula and I think we should have a registry. It's time," Bonnette said as he asked staff to come back with a report on a possible exotic pet bylaw in a month.

Halton Hills CAO Steve Andrews appears to share Bonnette's dislike of snakes. "If I thought that there was a boa constrictor anywhere near my office you'd have the bylaw tomorrow," Andrews said as he promised to look into the issue.

Still hope for 'Igloos' in Acton

There is still a chance that Halton Region will reconsider its decision to close its rural recycling depot in the Acton area. Following repeated mis-use and several arson fires the Region closed its Third Line recycling location which was designed to be used by rural residents who don't have a curb-side blue box program.

At Tuesday's general committee meeting Acton Councillor Rick Bonnette reported that talks are on-going with Regional waste management staff to try to find another location for the recycling bins, known as Igloos. "Maybe we can find a more visible site to keep some knucklehead from setting fire to them," Bonnette said, adding he will meet again next week with Halton staff.

Rural residents can take their recyclables to the Trafalgar Road works yard, to the Hornby Igloos or to the Regional landfill on Highway 25 in Milton. Staff report a 30 per cent increase in the amount of recyclables dropped off at the Trafalgar location after the Igloos were removed from Acton last month.
