The police want you!

Halton Regional Police Service is seeking community-minded individuals willing to volunteer their time in the Auxiliary Policing Program. Auxiliary members assist sworn police officers perform their duties including traffic control, foot patrol, general patrol and community events.

The selection process includes aptitude testing, physical abilities assessment, a behavioural interview and psychological testing.

To address the many questions about volunteering with the Auxiliary Unit, information nights will be held throughout the Region. Applications will be available.

If you are interested in learning more about the Auxiliary Policing Unit, and how you might fit in, come and join us!

Trapping no secret

this assistance, the group would have to agree to feed, water and monitor the cats daily. Additionally, they would have to agree to humanely trap all the cats and have them vaccinated, spayed or neutered, and also ear tattooed for identification purposes. The group would also have to get the people living around the feral colony to agree to the project.

Finally, I would like to point out that the humane society advises people that cats should be kept as indoor pets. It's a very dangerous world for cats. If you must let your cat outside, then it should be confined somehow.

Carbon build-up

BRYAN & DAN

Recently we had a question about preventing carbon build-up. There are many things that can cause this. Carbon deposits occur in all engines. This is a neutral byproduct of burning fuel and very small amounts of oil.

The only way to verify excess amounts of carbon would be to use a bore-scope to examine the inside of the combustion chamber without taking the engine apart. This device is similar to what doctors use to look inside the body.

Excessive engine pinging could be caused by carbon build-up. The carbon takes up space in the combustion chamber, raising the compression ratio. It also glows red hot and causes early detonation of the fuel.

Finally, the carbon can be seen on the ends of the spark plugs.

High oil consumption will cause excessive carbon build-up and with always driving short trips. Such trips do not allow the engine to get up to operating temperatures.

Assuming your car is not an oil burner, which would require major repairs, the most effective way to deal with the problem is to go on the highway and go briefly at wide open throttle.

Remember to watch the speed limit as carbon removal is not a legal excuse for speeding (been there).

Street names on agenda again

Several councillors suggested that Olympic athletes, noted authors and major artists' names could be used, and asked that the issue of naming streets be looked at, without delaying in subdivisions in the works.

Acton councillor Norm Elliott asked that at least one of the suggestions from the developer for the Georgetown subdivision - he wanted a Dickens theme - be used.

"I'm not sure who the literary councillor was back in the old Georgetown days when Keats, Byron and Shelley got named as streets, but that's the sort of inspirational creativity that should be considered a little bit," Elliott said.
