

FAMILY FUN: Mom Gail McIntosh and her children Hayley, 3 and Sean, 9 months from rural Acton enjoyed the fair. - Ted Tyler photo

HE DIDN'T WIN: James, a 10-year-old basset belonging to Emily Leach, 7, of Georgetown, showed a long face when he placed second in the Best Dressed Pet category at the Acton Fair Sunday. - Maggie Petrushevsky photo

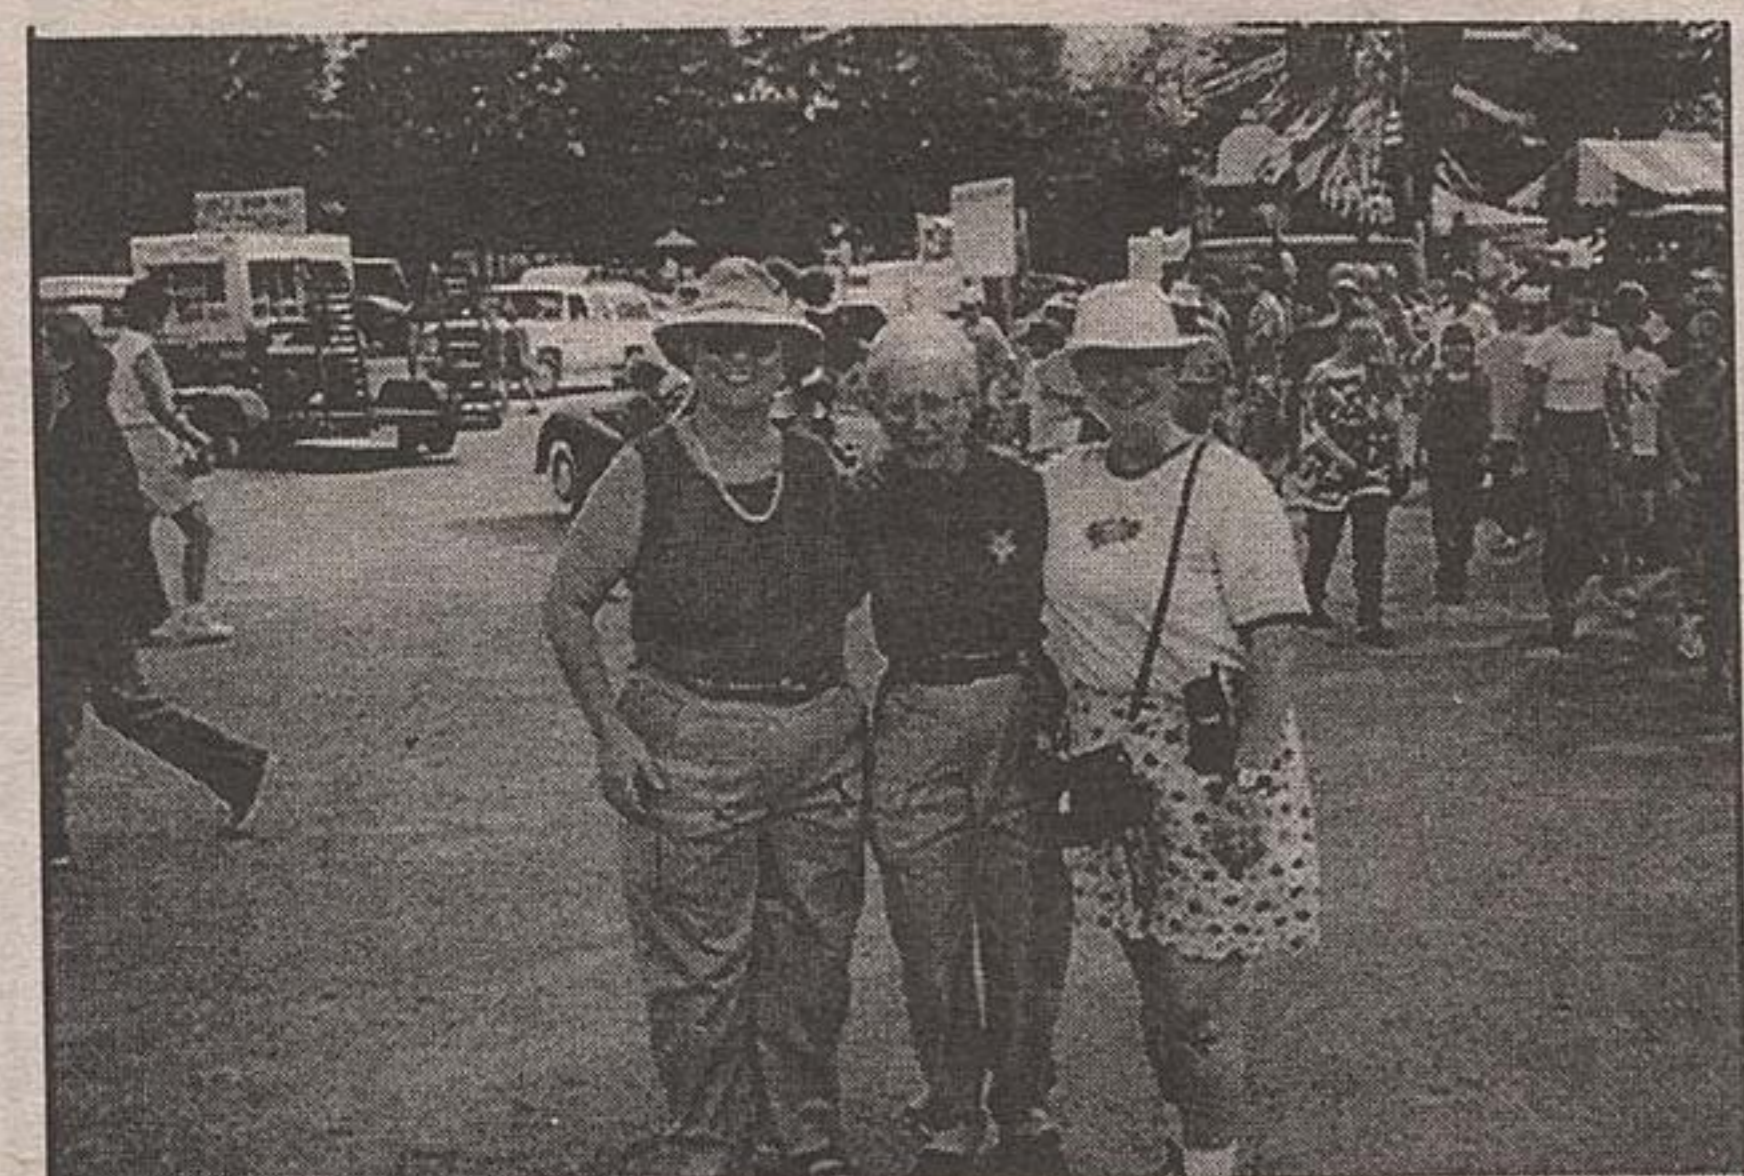

THE TINIEST: Olivia, a nine-week-old lhasa apso, posed with owners Steven and Katie Narvot, before entering the ring at Acton Fair to pick up the prize in the smallest dog class. - Maggie Petrushevsky photo

I'LL CLOSE MY EYES AND YOU KISS ME HERE: McKenzie-Smith Bennett student Shannon Mills, 12, receives a little affection from a lovable llama at the fair. - Ted Tyler photo

FALL FAIR
Through the Lens

ALL THE WAY FROM LIMEHOUSE: Heather Thompson, mom Dorothy Thompson and Roberta Thompson enjoyed the fair on Saturday. - Ted Tyler photo

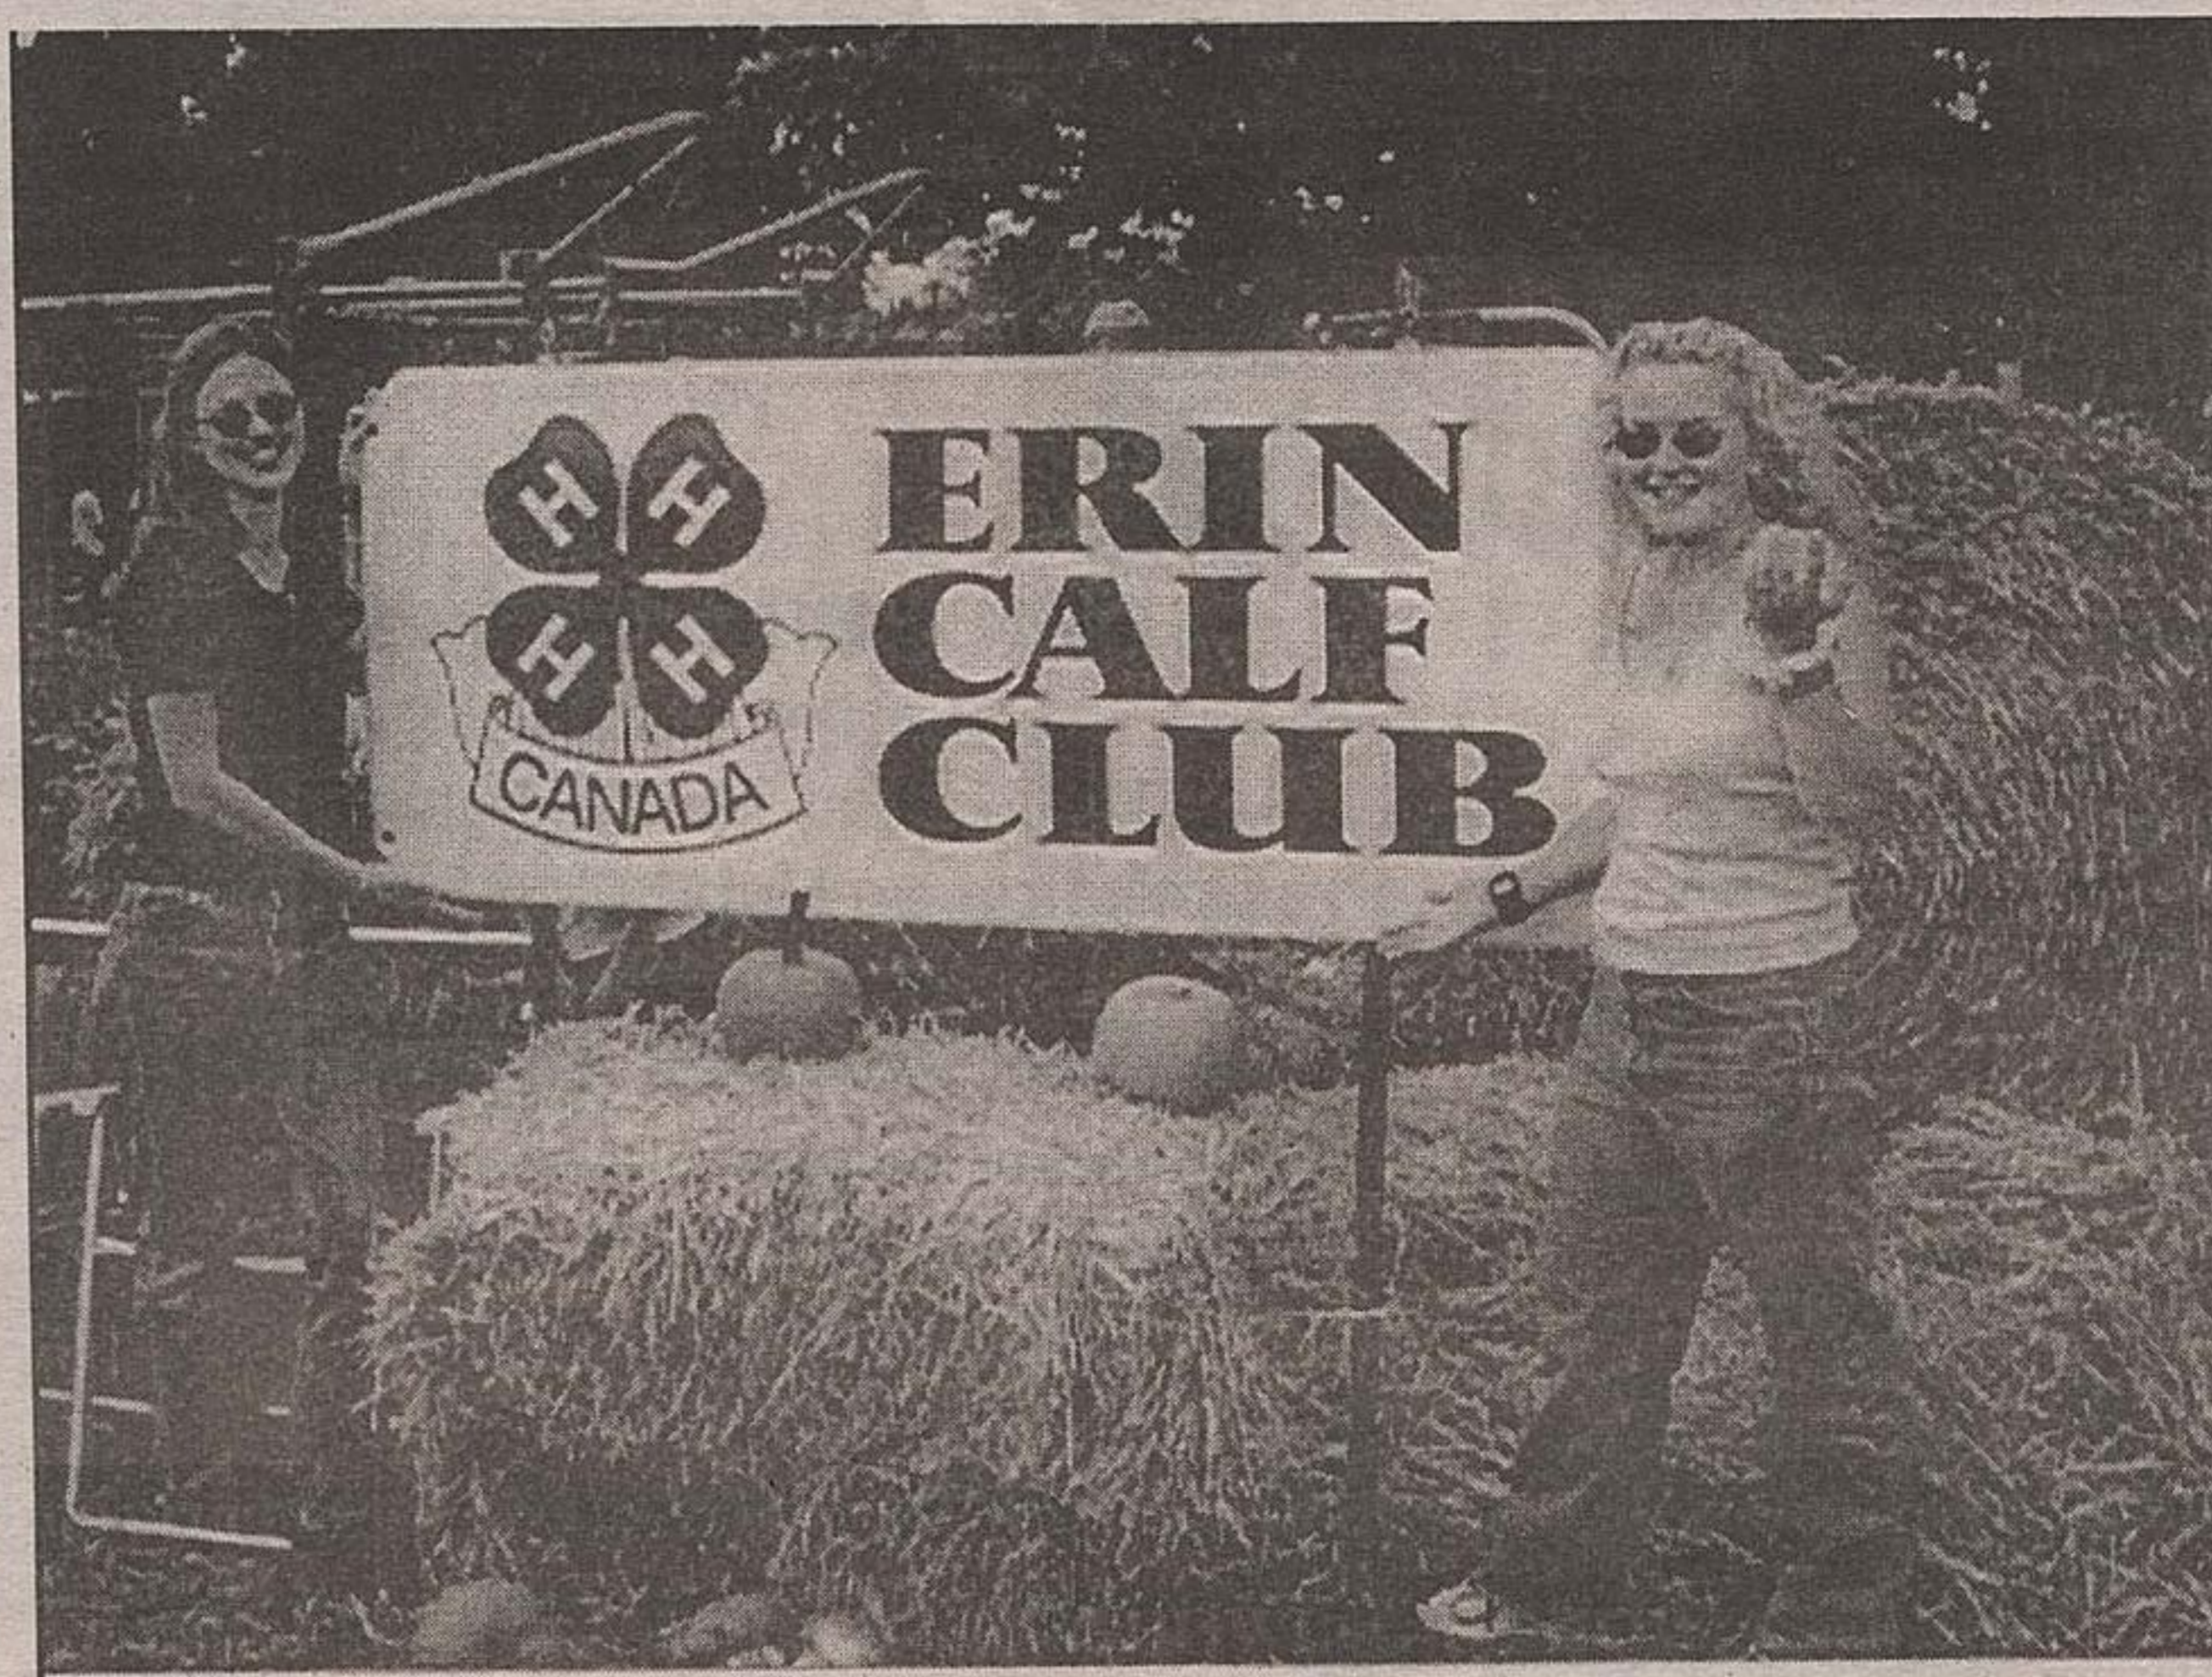

UP AND OVER: The Northern Borders Flyball and Canine Performance Team entertained many during two shows on Saturday. - Angela Tyler photo

CUTTING HIS NOTCH: Cecil Starr cuts the first notch before placing a board to begin his demonstration of cutting timber up in the air. Lumberjack competitions have a category for topping trees 10 feet or more off the ground. To do this competitors create their own stairs of boards, then balance on the upper one to make the cut. - Maggie Petrushevsky photo

MASTERS TAE KWAN DO gave demonstrations of the ancient art at the fair. - Ted Tyler photo

THE ERIN CALF CLUB showed at the Acton Fall Fair. Checking the display were former Miss Acton Fall Fair Jennifer Aitken and Lisa Madgett from Erin. - Ted Tyler photo