

Thanksgiving

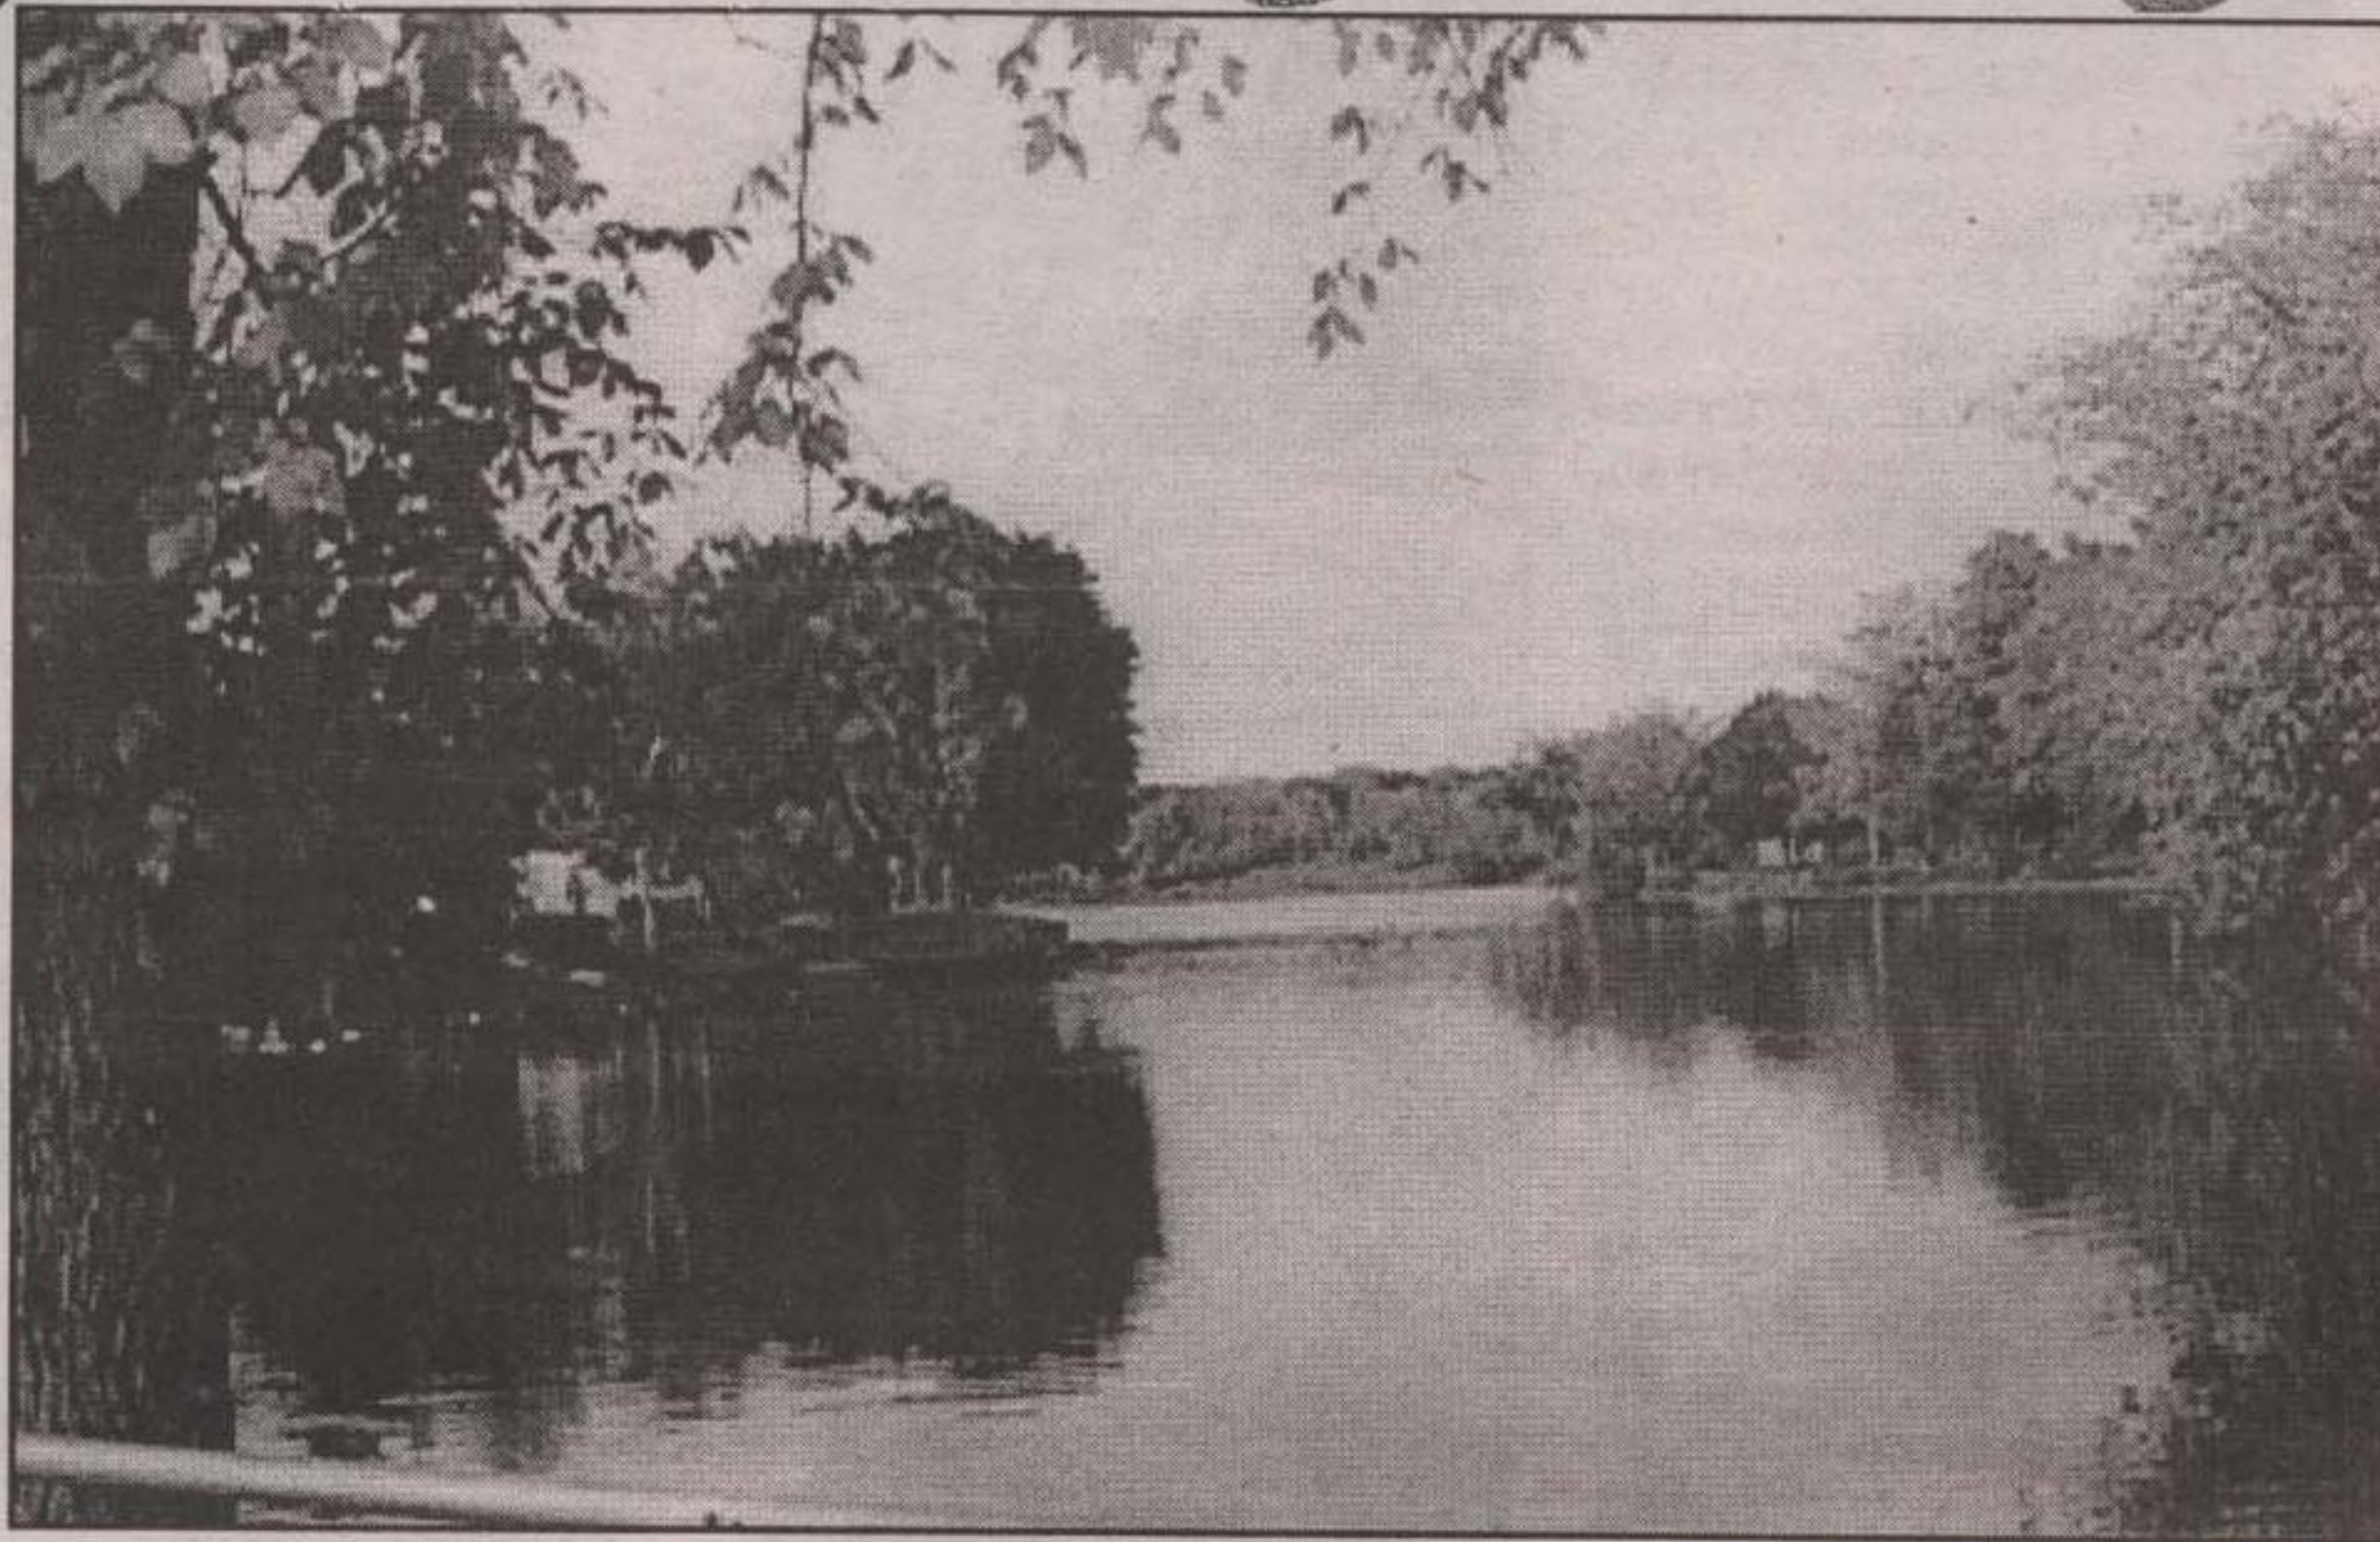

Lots to do

haps but just as much of a panorama is Regional Road 25 and the Campbellville Sideroad where they dip down the Escarpment into their respective valley. It will take your breath away if you go south on the Blue Springs Line (6th Line) and plunge down the Escarpment where it overlooks the Kelso Conservation Area.

There's things to do there as well. Halton Region Museum is holding a Thanksgiving dinner on Sunday, October 10 in the conservation area's 19th century homestead. Or, if you'd rather soar above the trees on the Autumn Colours Sky Ride in the same area, chair lift rides go to the top of the Escarpment on Monday from 11:00am to 4:00pm.

On top of the "mountain" you can explore the trail or enjoy the panoramic cliff-edge view and walk through old growth forest. Or if you find travelling on a weekend distressing then take the family for a walk on the old race track in Prospect Park. The trees and their vivid colours are mirrored in Fairy Lake and the exercise will do you good.

Vivid hues are appearing along the shores of Fairy Lake as Mother Nature turns on the charm with a kaleidoscope of colours that reflect in the mill pond surface.

Or how about the Erin Fair on the Thanksgiving weekend. It's called the Preview to the Royal Winter Fair and with good reason. There's lot's to do on this Thanksgiving weekend!
