NOW HANG ON: Roy Steinberg, of Rockwood, started son Noah, 2, on his hockey career while family and friends enjoyed the natural ice rink on the Eramosa River. Between the crisp temperatures and bright sunshine Saturday the ice attracted a number of families.- Maggie Petrushevsky photo

FUN IN THE SUN: At left, Sarah Duffield, 9, of Mount Bridges and Mitchell Drohan, 9, of Rockwood, didn't need any equipment to slide down the hill into the drainage pond by the Rockwood Ridge subdivision. Above, Sarah takes the time to enjoy the sunshine Saturday. - Maggie Petrushevsky photos
