School Bus Manners

Going back to school consists of more than new clothes and meeting new friends. It also entails parents and caregivers educating children on safety - to help them get to and from school safely.

Children need to know what is appropriate and inappropriate behaviour when near traffic, getting to a bus stop, getting on and off the bus and, of course, on the school bus itself. Identify possible hazards for the children and make sure they cross the street at crosswalks - not between two cars.

Instruct them to wait until their bus stops completely before trying to board. Use the handrails getting on and off the bus. There are blind spots where visibility is not clear, just ahead of the bus front and the back right hand. It's important children remain in view of the driver and not get too close to the side of the bus.

While riding on the bus, children should always remain seated and not block the centre aisle. No throwing objects or shouting to distract the driver.

It's time for motorists to be on the lookout for school buses, too, and stay back when lights are flashing. If everyone cooperates it will keep our children safe.
