Teach children rules of the road

Fall may bring cooler temperatures, but that will never stop kids from playing outdoors, whether it be riding bikes, jumping in the leaves or tossing a baseball. But, these early evening hours are a dangerous time for children. Nearly half of traffic-related child pedestrian deaths occurred after school from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. in 2001, according to the National Safe Kids Campaign.

These daunting statistics are attributed to the fact that kids can't always judge speed, space and distance. Such capacities are beyond their control - these senses don't develop fully until age 10. That's why children under 10 years old should never cross the street by themselves.

Make it a point to teach kids the rules of the road. Teach them how to obey traffic signals. Tell them to stop and cross the street at corners and crosswalks, and not to enter the street from between parked cars or from behind bushes or shrubs.

Tell kids to look in both directions twice before crossing the street. They should make eye contact with drivers before crossing the street - just because they can see a driver doesn't mean he can see them. Prohibit play in driveways, streets, parking lots and unfenced yards adjacent to streets. A high number of children from birth to age 2 suffer nontraffic-related pedestrian injuries in places like driveways, parking lots and sidewalks.

Teaching your kids these tips can help reduce unnecessary accidents and keep them doing what kids love to do - playing outside.
