

Terry Fox Run September 19

87% of funds goes to Cancer research

by Jon Hurst

On Sunday, September 19, the 24th annual Terry Fox Run will take place, rain or shine, at the Acton High School track. The official opening begins at 8 a.m. with Acton Citizen of the Year Max MacSween and Mayor Rick Bonnette present to cut the ribbon. Participants can arrive any time between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. to run, walk, jog or cycle some or all of the 25 laps around the track.

The event is not a race or a competition, but an opportunity for caring individuals and their families to complete the fundraising event around the track at their own desired pace and length.

In 1988, the Terry Fox Run became a Trust, independent from the Canadian Cancer Society, and received tax-exempt charitable registration as a public foundation. The annual event continues to be known as The Terry Fox Run, while the structural organization is known as The Terry Fox Foundation.

The funds raised through the annual Terry Fox Run are used exclusively for cancer research and are distributed by the National Cancer Institute of Canada to fund the best quality research in Canada.

"The Terry Fox Foundation is known for funding some of the country's brightest and most innovative cancer researchers," says Dr. Michael Wosnick, NCIC's executive director. "Many of the milestones in our ability to treat and manage cancer have been achieved thanks to research funded by the Foundation."

Since the inception of the run in 1981, the Foundation has raised a total of $342 million. Administration expenses total 3 % and fundraising expenses total 10% which leaves 87% of all monies raised to go directly to cancer research.

As well as raising money, the Terry Fox Foundation continues to share the story of Terry Fox, and to maintain the discipline, commitment and integrity that he exhibited throughout his Marathon of Hope, as he raised awareness among Canadians to the ravages of cancer and the need to find a cure.

In 1999, during a visit to Acton, Terry's mother, Betty Fox, stopped at the crest of the hill on the Veteran's Highway as it enters Acton, to install a new sign on the large community board. It reads "Acton - A Proud Terry Fox Run Community." Acton has been committed to Terry since 1980, and with the support of so many dedicated volunteers, participants and donors, it is our hope that this year we can see our total funds raised exceed half a million dollars.

Terry once said, "Even if I don't finish, we need others to continue. It's got to keep going without me."

Please join us on Sunday, September 19, and bring a friend, as we continue Terry's dream of finding a cure for cancer.

AN EARLY VIEW of Stewarttown illustrates the hamlet's early beginnings. The view from an old photo includes from the right, the first council chambers, property of John Tracy, Bell's Paint Shop where rebel William Lyon Mackenzie's sympathizers congregated, Lawson's second mill and Mitchell's cooperage.

anyway when for a salary of $380 a year Charles McLellan attempted to educate 126 pupils in a one room building. Now there's a modern senior (middle) public school at the top of the "Stewarttown hill" across from St. Johns Anglican Church, originally a Methodist Church, but bought by the Anglicans in 1880.

There was always an interest in sports in the village but history records that marathon runner Tom Longboat, a blood-Indian from the Six Nations Reserve near Brantford, chose Stewarttown for his headquarters while training for marathons. He boarded at Hill's Hotel and trained on the Seventh Line from Stewarttown to Hornby. Longboat gained fame when he won the Boston Marathon in 1907 and set a new record. He won many more cups and cash awards for his running ability but died at age 62 in poverty back at his Six Nations home.

Like Tom Longboat, Stewarttown had its ups and downs but is now principally a quiet, pretty village with fine residential areas. The original mill pond which was dammed for the first mill still exists but the mill is gone, replaced after a disastrous fire by the Halton Stove Co.
