Residents opposed to Flour Mill expansion

By LISA TALLYN
Staff writer

A petition of about 50 signatures from Acton residents opposed to any further expansion at Halton Flour Milling was presented to council Monday night.

The petition is in response to changes proposed at the mill including the construction of three new silos on the property, a truck weigh scale, increased building heights and the use of a house on the property as an office. The planning department has not yet received the final plans on the changes, and after they do a public meeting will be held so area residents can have their say.

In a letter included with the petition the mill area residents said the mill operations are "invasive enough on the surrounding community and environment." They said a weigh scale at the mill would be intolerable "with truckers on night shifts parked, engines running, waiting their turn while residents try to sleep."

The residents raised concerns about the current noise level near the mill and the increased noise that could result from the changes.

"Yes, the buyers of the homes surrounding the mill were well aware of its presence when they moved into the area, but they expected appropriate bylaws to be in place to protect them against the unrestrained growth of the facility; the annexation of neighboring houses and land, and the consequent devaluation of their property."

At the meeting council forwarded the petition to the town planning department for a report to be included in the one it is preparing for the rezoning proposed for the property.

THE CHIROPRACTIC LIFESTYLE

1995 is the centennial celebration for Chiropractic. Chiropractic continues to grow, more chiropractors and more people benefitting from their care. Medical and chiropractic research has validated the chiropractic adjustment as an extremely effective procedure.

The British Medical Journal released in 1990 the results of a ten year British study. The report stated that "chiropractic treatment was significantly more effective... particularly for patients with chronic and severe pain... and results were long-term."

In 1979, the conclusions of a New Zealand government Commission of Inquiry into Chiropractic were revealed. One of the principal findings: "the responsibility for spinal manual therapy, because of its specialized nature, should lie with the chiropractic profession."

The recent Manga Report, funded by the Ontario government, found evidence to suggest "spinal manipulations are less safe and less effective when performed by non-chiropractic professionals."

A century ago, chiropractors began giving spinal adjustments with confidence and belief in their effectiveness. One hundred years later, the scientific research is verifying this effectiveness.

DENTURE "SORE SPOTS"

The main reason for having sore spots is ill-fitting dentures. Your mouth is constantly changing and your gums are constantly shrinking. Also denture wear causes discomfort. It is always important to note that an illfitting denture does not have to be worn out "old" denture. It is possible to have a new denture that is illfitting, but for many different reasons. It might not have been made right from the start.

OTHER REASONS FOR HAVING SORE SPOTS
As you get older, your body goes through many changes. Tissue can become more sensitive to pressure which can cause irritation. Medication can give you a "dry mouth". This makes it more difficult for the denture to suction to the roof of your mouth. It also can cause rubbing which causes sore spots.

If you are having trouble with sore spots, contact our office for a free, no obligation consultation.
