

Ontario Liberal leader on a factfinding mission in Acton

By LISA TALLYN
Staff writer

Ontario Liberal leader Lyn McLeod visited Acton Precision Millwrights Ltd. Tuesday afternoon to see how the company has managed to thrive throughout the recession.

McLeod also wanted to a feedback from a small business on what it expects from Liberal government, should they win the next provincial election.

The Acton stop was part of McLeod's ongoing tour of businesses in Ontario since she became leader. Through her discussions with business people she hopes to discover what is required of the provincial government to allow for a strong and broad-based economic recovery.

"It gives me the opportunity to find out what is happening on the front lines, and that what we are doing is still making sense," said McLeod.

After taking a tour of the plant McLeod sat down for a discussion with Alec Kitson, vice president and operations manager of Acton Precision; Ted Lyons, owner/president of the company; Halton Hills mayor Marilyn Serjeantson, Halton North Liberal candidate Walt Elliot, and others.

McLeod asked what small business needs from government.

Kitson said Acton Precision didn't want any money from government.

Trial delayed

The trial of Ken Thomson, who has been charged with arson in connection with a house fire at his Acton residence three years ago was put over to September 18, 1995 at the request of the defence. It was previously scheduled to begin Monday. The two storey home on the corner of Mill and Young Sts. went up in flames at 6:30 p.m. Jan. 25, 1992.

Released from hospital

Both girls who were struck by a motorist February 4 have been released from hospital. Lynn Dales was released from Georgetown Hospital two days after the accident while Andrea Brennan, who suffered multiple fractures, has been released from McMaster Medical Centre in Hamilton.

Car damaged

The front grill of a 1992 Chevrolet parked on Carruthers Rd. overnight Tuesday was smashed, resulting in about $100 damage. There are no suspects in the incident.

Counting garbage

Park School students (from left) Cairis Wall, Lindsay Craig and Jeff Boyce were among the Grade 5 students who had the unenviable task of sifting through the garbage generated by the school as Marilyn Bray's Grade 5 students took part in a garbage audit this past week at the school. Part of a joint study organized by the Ministry of the Environment and Halton Board of Education, Park School was one of three local school (Stewarttown and Georgetown High as well) which separated and weighed the garbage to tabulate a work plan to reduce the amount of waste heading to landfill. TED BROWN photo
