Children sing April 9

Disney songs highlighted at 'Spectacular' event

The Georgetown Children's Chorus is presenting a Disney Spectacular concert at the John Elliott Theatre on Sunday, April 9.

There are two concerts at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. to allow room for families of the 90-voice choir, as well as the public.

The concert is suitable for all ages and includes music from 37 Disney songs. The choir will be in Disney costume, just to add to the fun.

It was easy for Choir Director Dale Wood to pick a Disney theme. His own kids love to sing Disney songs and he knew that it would appeal to all ages in the choir. The six year olds love Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dah and the teens in the Georgetown Youth Chorus (a division of the Children's Chorus) love Can You Feel The Love Tonight from The Lion King.

What makes Disney music so special?

The memories and emotions that each song inspires. When children of any age go to see a Disney movie, they experience a wide variety of emotions that are a big part of the adventure. For generations people have been flocking to the theatres and theme parks to live and relive the scariness of Cruella de Ville in 101 Dalmations or the hunter in Bambi, the tenderness of a mother elephant singing a lullaby was she rocks her Dumbo to sleep in the cradle of her trunk; the ridiculousness of dancing penguins or a skunk named Flower, the silliness of a man who laughs so hard that he rises to the ceiling, or pink elephants that form their own psychedelic parade; the sadness of a fawn that loses its mother and the hope of a wooden puppet who longs to become a real boy. Walt Disney helped keep a world that can often seem tired and weary as fresh as a kite-flying day!

In fact, the most difficult problem in putting together a revue of Disney music is not what songs to include, but what songs can you possibly leave out! It was tricky, but the choir thinks they have chosen something for everyone.

For a fun family experience (or the chance to be a kid again for an hour or two!), join the Georgetown Children's Chorus for a Disney Spectacular.

Tickets are $4 each and are available from Sandra 853-4382 or Lois 877-5545.
