

Town rezones
Glen homes

Due to a 20-year-old error, four properties in Glen Williams are in the process of being rezoned from industrial to residential.

The four properties, located on the east side of Ninth Line, north of Georgetown, all have homes on them.

Alan Binks, a planner for the town, said the zoning mistake was made in 1974 by a consultant hired by the town to do the zoning bylaw relating to the former township of Esquesing. Binks said on the map the four properties were to be excluded from the Halton

Hills Sand and Gravel industrial designation but were not, and have been zoned industrial like the gravel pit since then. Binks said the mistake recently came to the town's attention when one of the four homeowners wanted to put a deck on their home.

The town is paying for the cost of the rezoning.

A public meeting focusing on the rezoning has been set for May 15 at the Civic Centre, and Binks said if all goes as planned the properties should be rezoned by the end of June.
