Confirmed Beardmore's locks were cut

A recent visit to the former Beardmore Tannery property by councillors revealed locks had been cut on the building which houses PCBs there.

At council on Monday, Councillor Norm Elliott said he was correct when he mentioned weeks ago locks had been cut at the building. He was responding to a comment made by John Budz, manager of the Halton Peel MOEE District office, that Elliott's allegations were without substance.

Elliott said Monday the custodian at the now Maple Leaf Mills property verified locks had been cut and two were found lying on the floor of the building where the PCBs are stored. He said the property's new owners are doing a "commendable" job of securing that property now.

Job market promising for students

The student job scene looks very promising this year and the Student Employment Centre (CEC-S) serving Halton Hills and Erin students, is off to a great start.

That's according to Student Employment Officers, Andrea Whiting and Janet Scida.

Since the CEC-S office opened at 232 Guelph St., Unit 10 on May 2, the centre has had over 246 jobs vacancies listed on the job board. Whiting and Scida add that 1995 job postings have surpassed last year's vacancies. The centre has a variety of job postings that include, general labor, restaurant work, environmental or clerical positions.

To utilize the CEC-S effectively, students need to take initiative in their job searches. The first step should be to register with the Canada Employment Centre for Students in Georgetown. In addition, it is essential that students are persistent in their job search and that they come in to the centre to look over the job posting boards since there are new listings every day, comments Whiting.

There are plenty of jobs for students if they want to work, but the best jobs will go to those who start looking early, says Whiting.

In addition, Summer Employment Officers are eager to provide job search seminars and one-on-one assistance to help students stand out in a tough job market. Students may also want to consider bringing in a resume to the centre to pick up a few pointers from Whiting or Scida that could make a significant difference in their job searches.

The centre is open Monday to Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. or call 877-7797.

IN SEARCH OF ANSWERS

Children with hearing loss present us with a number of tough questions.

Parents want to know: Will he or she ever be able to keep up with the other kids? How can I get the people in his school to understand and work with him? And how can I get him to understand he's just like everyone else?

Educators questions: What can I do to help this child understand, communicate, learn and be a part of school life? How can I meet the special needs of a child while doing everything I need to do for the rest of the class?

Hearing care professionals wonder: How do I explain hearing loss in a way that will gain acceptance, encouragement and support from the child and family? How can I do my best with the technology at hand and feel that a child is getting the most from my professional care?

Physicians may ask: How do I build a team approach with other professionals involved in hearing care when it comes to one of my patients? How can I bring a complete hearing care program into my practice?
