

Quilt winner

Jim Akers of Georgetown won the raffle for a quilt put on by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ontario Number Four of the Loyal True Blue Association. The draw for the quilt was made at Ranton Place in Palmerston, Ontario. Proceeds from ticket sales will go to the Loyal True Blue and Orange Research Institute in support of diabetes research. The quilt was presented to Akers, left, by Ila Switzer, the organization's immediate past provincial grand mistress. Phyllis Livingston of Georgetown won a handpainted tablecloth in the raffle.

Rockwood woman a triple winner

"I won again!" Veronica Ofsonka yelled after winning $10,000 playing Instant Bingo. She recently won $5000 playing Instant Bingo and $1,000 playing Ontario Instant Millions, the Rockwood resident told Ontario Lottery Corporation staff. Ofsonka, 58, is a mother of five and grandmother of three. She and her husband, John, plan to use the windfall for some minor household renovations.

"We need new windows and a new front door," she said.

The winning Instant Bingo ticket was purchased at Rockwood Village Store on Alma Street.

To date, Instant Bingo has generated over $399 million in sales and players have claimed more than $192 million in prizes.

Last year, Ontario Lottery Corporation made available over $958 million in prizes. Nearly all major lottery winners in Ontario invest or pay bills, and most share their winnings with family or friends, or donate to charity.
