Local piper hits the right notes

Fourteen-year-old Judith Irwin has come a long way in competitive piping over the past year.

She joined the Milton Optimist Junior Pipe Band last September and went to Glasgow, Scotland to compete in the World Piping Championship in August. The band placed second in the juvenile category (juvenile is for bands with all members under 18 years old). The band also did well at the highland games which they competed in when they were in Scotland. At one event they placed second in Grade 2 level, and were only beat out by the current world champions. Normally they compete at the Grade 3 level, which is one notch down.

Last year Judith was the North American champion solo piper in Grade 5, which is the first level of competitive piping for people who are just starting out with the bagpipes. This year she competed all over Ontario and the United States. At the American Championships in the spring, Judith placed second in Grade 4 as a solo piper.

"It really shows the progress she has made over the last year," said her mother, Iris Irwin, also a piper and a member of the Georgetown Girls Ppe Band.

Bronze at the world championships

Highland dancers medal at Games

The girls from the Georgetown School of Highland Dancing have worked hard this year competing at numerous Highland Games throughout the summer and have won many awards both in Ontario and in Scotland.

Congratulations to Meaghan Allan who won a bronze medal at the Cowal Gathering (World Championship) in Scotland and to Megan McGrath for winning an overall Novice National trophy at the Canadian Championships in London, Ontario.

Other medal winners this summer include: Laura Casey, Ashley Syme, Gill Redman, Mallory Allan, Leaha Fendley, Lindsey Fendley, Lee McKeown, Donna Downey, Darlene Downey and Katrina Alton.

Sue McCarrol, director of the Georgetown School of Highland Dancing has announced that Jacqueline Smith will be joining the school this fall. Smith, a world champion, a North American champion and a Canadian champion for many years has been a quest teacher at the Georgetown school before and will begin instructing the Monday evening classes on Oct. 1.

McCarrol, a world champion dancer herself, has been a leader in developing Highland dancing in Canada and has produced many world champion dancers, teachers and judges.

For more information on new class availability, call Sue McCarrol at 873-3919.
