GREEN THUMB GARDENING

By CHRISTINE COLE LATE SUMMER BLOOMERS

The end of summer does not have to be the end of flowers in your landscape. By this time many annuals, perennials and shrubs are beyond their prime or have finished blooming. This allows other plants to become the focal point in your yard. Late-season flowering shrubs can be the answer. Many display spectacular and showy flowers in late summer or early fall. As a result, these shrubs bridge the gap between summer flowers and a landscape dominated by autumn-colored leaves. They're an excellent way to brighten a corner of the yard in the growing season.

The following is a short collection of late-season flowering shrubs:

Pee Gee Hydrangea: Large shrub or small tree that quickly grows to 8 feet at maturity. It possesses incredibly large (6-8 inch long), cone shaped flowers in mid-August and lasts for several weeks. During this time their pure white flowers gradually change to pink.

Annabelle Hydrangea: This shrub also grows fast in a partially shaded location, but only reaches a height of 3-4 feet. By August the flowers are flat, white heads and about 4-5 inches in diameter.

Rose of Sharon (Hibiscus): This is also a tall but slender shrub (up to 7 feet tall) with distinctive upright branches. It has very attractive trumpet-shaped flowers (similar in size and shape to the Hibiscus grown as a houseplant) in shades of pale pink to purple and red. Blooms in August-September and performs best in full sun to partial shade.

Every other week Christine Cole of Tuitman's Garden Centre and Landscaping, Highway 25, 1 mile south of Acton, 853-2480, will be presenting helpful tips and information to assist you in creating your garden showcase!
