Rural Watch meeting Wednesday, Nov. 15

Nassagaweya Rural Watch invites you to become involved!

The Rural Watch is based on the Urban Neighborhood Watch concept, but is specifically designed for Milton rural residents. It operates as part of the Halton Regional Police Community Policing program which has been responsible for keeping criminal activity in the rural area to a minimum. Members become part of a pyramid telephone system which keeps citizens informed about criminal acts and suspicious activities.

There is no membership fee. This is a non-profit organization and everyone is encouraged to participate. There will be an information night on Wednesday, Nov. 15, at 7:30 p.m. at the Nassagaweya Community Centre in Brookville. Plan to attend.

Barry Timleck and his friend George made the rounds at the Rotary Club of Georgetown's Annual Seniors Dinner held at Holy Cross Hall recently. Sally Coleman (at right) chatted with the duo before the meal was served.

A CANADIAN LEGEND

In 1918, Canadian soldiers blinded in battle came home from the war in Europe.

With them they brought a vision. They dreamed of an organization that would assist blind and visually impaired Canadians to live independent and productive lives and to participate fully in their communities and in the life of their nation.

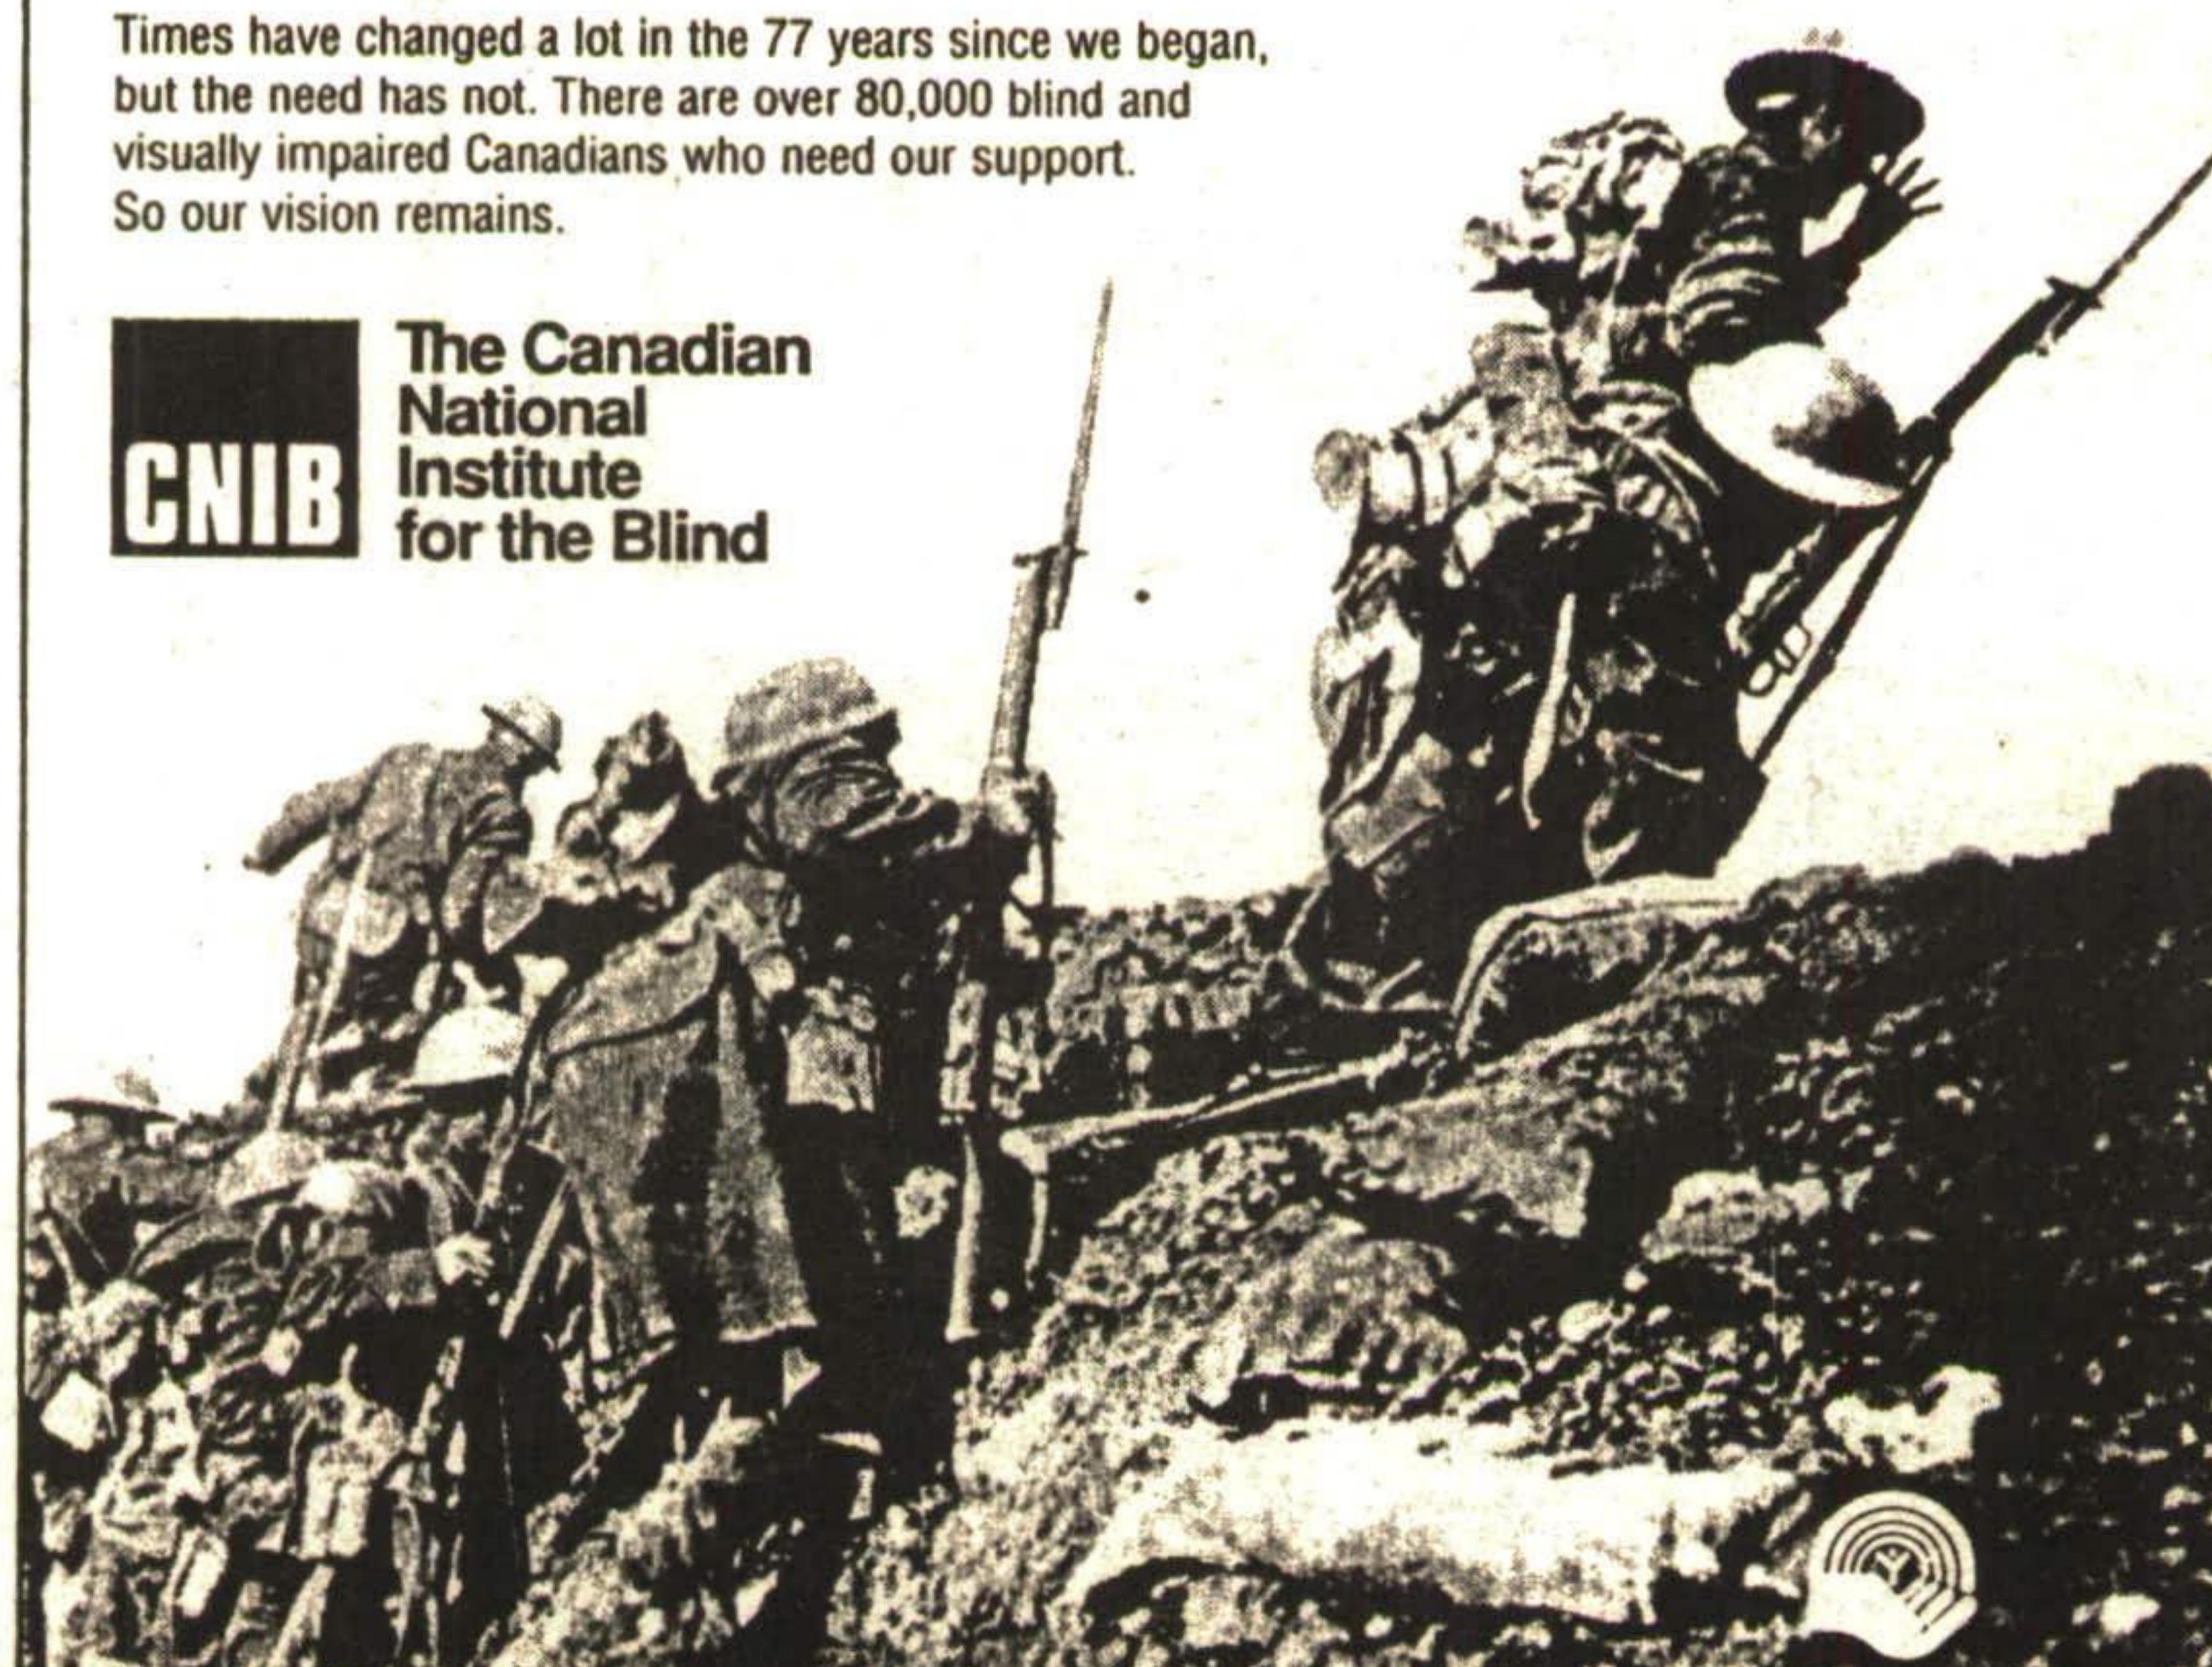

Those soldiers founded The Canadian National Institute for the Blind. We've since grown to become the world's largest provider of services to people with visual impairment, and a global leader in adaptive and assistive technologies.

Times have changed a lot in the 77 years since we began, but the need has not. There are over 80,000 blind and visually impaired Canadians who need our support. So our vision remains.
