A unqualified success, Lion parade marshal El Lloyd credits the support of his Lions committee hitting the streets early October. Garnering financial support from the business community and substantial budget commitment from the Lions Club, he acquired six bands for the enjoyment of the largest turnout of spectators yet.

On a bitter cold day Georgetowners lined the parade route from Moore Park to Georgetown Marketplace. A total of floats were entered by community spirited organizations and businesses. The best float entries were judged by Chamber of Commerce representatives and winners of the division were announced by Lloyd at the monthly Lions executive meeting Nov. 28.

Best Band — Galt Kiltie Band. Best Marching Group — Arthur High School. Best Service Club — Kinsmen Club/Lions Club (jointly). Best Theme Entry — Georgetown Parent-Child Centre. Best Overall — Georgetown Parent-Child Centre. Special Judge's Award — Halton Hills Against Drunk Driving and 2nd Brownies East/5th Girl Guides. Honorable Mention — Neilson's Dairy.

A Sunday appearance of Santa was necessitated by conflicting Memorial Day services on the usual November weekend event. From comments received and the huge turnout of spectators along the route, consideration is being given to future

Sunday parades.

Lloyd commented that a successful parade does not just happen and the work and commitment to the cause in demanded of the committee of Lions involved.

The satisfaction is mirrored in the faces of the children and the exceptional calibre of floats and bands contributing to this year's success.

The Georgetown Lions Club, the supporting businesses, the float entrants and all contributors are all to be highly commended for their contribution in supporting the Georgetown community.

For 65 years the Lions have organized the annual Santa Claus parade. It is a remarkable achievement for a great many Lions over these many years and they deserve thanks for this commitment.
